23 RCI MEMBER SECTION 35 RCI HOLIDAY STORIES

Dear RCI member,

We know winter isn't everyone's dream time for taking holidays, but it is a great time for planning! This edition has an extra large feature on Cruises and Tours which are all very popular with our members.

European River cruising continues to gain in popularity; it's been my most desired holiday for some time and I hope to finally do it next year. The idea of cruising through spectacular European countryside at a leisurely pace with shore excursions and delicious meals served up is my holiday heaven.

But, if you do want to get away for a cut price last minute break, now is definitely the time to do it. As the weather cools, we find we have more available units than there is exchange demand for so we can offer these as Bonus Weeks. No exchange deposit required, just a small fee of around AU$199 for a great week's accommodation in one of our affiliated resorts at several holiday destinations throughout Australia and New Zealand (see page 26). I really believe this represents the best holiday value you can get! Most of the units are 2 bdrm so take the family; book a couple of units if you want more room for everyone. Please give us a call and we'll make it as easy as possible to get you away for another wonderful bonus holiday!

EATPRAYLOVE

your way through Italy, Indonesia and India

Since Liz Gilbert published her famous travel memoir Eat Pray Love in 2006, Italy, India and Indonesia have been drawing more soul, sun and fun-seekers than ever before. Who says you have to follow the order of the book? See and experience these amazing interchangeable countries in any order. When it comes to Eat Pray Love... it's your journey!

2 JULY 2012 The Danube in Budapest

EAT IN ITALY

There's no limit to how long you could spend in Italy, especially once you discover gelato and pizza. For a gastronomic journey like no other, brush up on your Italian pronto.

Bolzano

As the capital of the Alps, Bolzano in Northern Italy is a must-see destination. Cycle the wine roads, cruise the Piazza delle Erbe (Piazza of Herbs) and for a taste sensation don't miss an authentic German sausage from a street vendor. Alternatively, try the Pasta Fagioli or deer stew at Cavallino Bianco, the best place to eat in Bolzano since the 12th century.

Rome

When in Rome you can justify all sorts of things – acting like a gladiator at the Colosseum, for one. After a trip to this Flavian Amphitheatre, dating back to 72 AD, enjoy slow food at Primo or grab a gelato at Ci Gusta! Burn off the calories with an al fresco stroll through St. Peter's Basilica, then go 'frescoes' with Michelangelo's masterpieces in the Sistine Chapel.

Umbria: Perugia and Tuscany

Moving central, you'll be hard-pressed not to fall in love with the vineyards dotted around Tuscany. Volpaia, a fully restored village from the Middle Ages, is host to some incredible cellars. For truly delectable cuisine, head to La Porta in Pienza and order the pici (fat spaghetti) topped with cheese and pepper. Bellissimo!

Florence, Verona and San Marino Republic

From your base in Florence you can explore the famous Piazza della Signoria: the heart of the historic centre. Peruse the free, open-air sculpture exhibits and the medieval Palazzo Vecchio. Don't miss the chance to learn about Tuscan cuisine on an exclusive Flavours of Florence food and wine tour.

With a day trip to Verona you can see the home of Shakespeare's Romeo & Juliet. Get even more loved up at Trattoria Tre Marchetti (open until 4am) over the best Italian cooking on earth. Try the smoked ham drowned in Amarone wine, the scallops with sweet Recioto wine and bacon, and the strawberries with zabaglione cream.

In San Marino Republic explore the walled town of the capital, built high into the rock of Monte Titano. Scale the old streets and visit museums (notably the eerie Museum of Torture Instruments). Scaling the 14th century Castello della Cesta provides a chance to see the coast from up high and, in an open border agreement with Italy, visitors can have their passport emblazoned with a novelty stamp by the San Marino authority downtown at the passport office.

Italy's western coast

In Sardinia, II Pescatore in the heart of Baja di Porto Cervo is the Costa's only pieds dans l'eau restaurant, right on the water. An archway of juniper supports the ceiling, and for the finest of Italian seafood head to the terrace.

In Capri, once you've marvelled at the Faraglioni – timeless rock formations jutting from the sea – dine in style at II Cucciolo in Anacapri. A perfect place for romantics and families alike, you'll eat on a candlelit table under a pergola perched high on the gulf of Naples. Try the local

In Positano, the Spiaggia del Fornillo, perhaps the most beautiful stretch of coast in the Mediterranean, will blow you away. Nestled in the hills of Montepertuso on the Amalfi Coast, II Ritrovo is also waiting to impress – a retreat so high they'll offer to pick you up from the beach. The views are worth it, as is the octopus entrée.

shrimp and ravioli caprese with butter and sage.

The Oscar-winning smile on Julia Roberts' face wasn't necessarily all acting in 2010's Eat, Pray, Love. Anyone looking for relaxation and rejuvenation on a holiday in the sun will fall in love with Bali, on or off a bicycle.

Candidasa

Try exploring east Bali. Being less developed than much of the southern coast of Bali, there's minimum shopping in this east coast Bali destination. However, lounging on the sand or around a swimming pool, catching up on reading and enjoying some nasi goreng and fresh coconuts are ideal ways to break up the day.

Hindu Shrine

Goa Lawah Temple, or the Bat Cave as it's sometimes referred to by locals, is a Hindu shrine and cave that is home to thousands of bats. Tours are available from Candidasa – just ask at your hotel or arrange your own driver.

Go diving in Bali

If scuba diving is on your must-do list, the east coast of Bali boasts some of the best diving in Indonesia. Call Baliku Dive Resort and they will happily come and collect you. Tulamben, just a short drive away, gives you the chance to do the USS Liberty shipwreck dive. Closer to Amed, the Japanese shipwreck is stunning against a beautiful coral garden.

BAIT

Looking for luxury in Candidasa? You can opt to stay at the RVC Hotel Rama Candidasa, offering private beach frontage and a beach terrace, ocean breezes and a truly romantic atmosphere for couples and nature lovers. Alternatively, the Royal Bali Beach Club at Candidasa is great for families, offering one and two-bedroom apartments.

RELAX

Stay in the style of a traditional village at the Risata Bali Resort & Spa and test out the Sukha Spa, where a five-star beauty package treatment awaits (from AU$75/NZ$96) including a relaxing massage, facial and warm bath infused with exotic flowers.

LOVE INDIA

Once you've eaten and prayed, immerse yourself in the culture of a real Indian experience. From the majestic Taj Mahal to the backwaters of Kerala, there's a lot to love about India.

Village life

They say that India lives in its villages, so why not live in an Indian village? In Chaugan, close to the Kanha Wildlife Sanctuary, you may be inspired to work on that book you've been thinking of writing. Rudyard Kipling wrote The Jungle Book in this village of tribes, and you can still see the people of Gaddi here, camping along with their deer.

Great weather year round plus the gorgeous Gudhapura Lake make Banavasi Village a relaxing destination. It has an active community of 1500 artisans all busy with carpentry, basket making, pottery and more. Others to try are Naggar, famous for metalwork and wood, and spiritual Nepura, where Buddha gave his first teaching.

Goa beaches

If total tranquility is a must, the isolated charm of Agonda Beach in Goa is perfect. If you want action, Anjuna Beach's flea market and psychedelic trance at sunset will float your boat. For water sports and dolphin sightseeing trips try Benaulim Beach. Party fans shouldn't miss the annual Goa Carnival, a music, food and dance event that lasts for three days.

Behold the majesty of the Taj Mahal in its prime by the light of a full moon. This palace, built with love and completed around 1653, makes the train ride to Agra worth it. Go early or late to dodge the crowds and get the best photos.

Kerala Village Fair

Many visitors to Kerala wait until the Kerala Village Fair is on before hitting town, usually mid-January. During the 10-day festival, traditional thatched houses and the open-air auditorium of Gramam are decorated as the venues for various music, feasts and festivities. For a more serene Kerala experience, rent a houseboat and cruise the backwaters, sleeping under a blanket of stars.

The holiest city of India: Varanasi

Varanasi is often referred to as "the city of temples" or "the holy city of India". Take a morning boat ride across the ghats and observe the Hindus bathing themselves in the Ganges. Next head to the Vishwanath Temple - also known as the Golden Temple - for a jaw-dropping step back in time to old India.

Corbett National Park

Jim Corbett National Park covers over 500km² in the Himalayan foothills. Named after the legendary hunter-turnedconservationist, Jim Corbett was famous for hunting man-eating tigers and leopards, though you'll be hard-pressed to see any now. Ask your hotel about day trips.

Holi Festival

Usually in February or early March, the Hindu Holi Festival begins with the lighting of a huge bonfire. Then the streets light up with decorations as people from all cultures hug and wish each other a "Happy Holi". The Holi Festival is one of the best times to visit India. Find yourself and a love of Hindi culture at the same time. 💵

For nature lovers who enjoy a bit of adventure, there's a wide variety of treks, from gentle jungle strolls to three-day mountain hikes, taking in gorges, waterfalls, rainforests and certain villages where cannibalism was once rife. This is where the real untouched Fiji is waiting to be discovered. The more intrepid can white water raft their way back to the beach.

Also close to Nadi are the Sabeto hot water springs and mud baths. Set in lush surroundings, the sulphur in the spring water is said to have magical healing properties. Slather yourself in mud first and then lie back and soak it off in the natural ponds.

From cultural immersion to lazing on the beach to jungle adventures, Fiji really is a once in a lifetime holiday destination.

Fiji really is the ultimate island escape. In fact, so perfect are these Pacific islands that they've featured as the backdrop of Hollywood films such as The Blue Lagoon and Cast Away.

ust as cinema-goers swoon over the sight of Fiji's sundrenched sands and dazzling sea on the big screen, so too does every visitor that reaches the islands. It truly is as beautiful as it looks in films, and that's not even taking into account the wonders under the waves.

White sand beaches fringed by palm trees, a lush interior and some of the most spectacular coral gardens on Earth make Fiji a popular tourist destination as well as a prime dive spot. It also entices surfers from across the globe thanks to its amazing breaks. In particular, the stunning island of Malolo Lailai with its 10 km of sandy beaches and heavenly lagoons is famed in the surfing world.

Because of its situation in the South Pacific, Fiji, for all its beauty and appeal, doesn't attract hordes of visitors. As a result, it has managed to retain most of its charm. In recent years eco-tourism has also taken off, enabling visitors to travel sustainably and to support the growth of local businesses and traditional crafts.

Many eco-tour companies organise trips to remote areas of Fiji, where visitors can get up close to local wildlife in the national parks and reserves. One popular trip is to Navala, a traditional village. It's here that visitors to Fiji can get a taste of what life was like hundreds of years ago. As well as getting the chance to watch local craftsmen and women at work, there's also the opportunity to participate in village ceremonies and feasts.

If you're looking for the place to be then head to Nadi, the third largest town in Fiji has become something of a tourist hub – a place to get your bearings and also the starting point for many of the tours on offer.

You can take a sunset boat trip from the port, enjoying dinner beneath the stars. Alternatively, you can join one of the many day snorkelling trips that hop between islands. Not only can you swim with giant manta rays and dolphins, and picnic on a deserted beach, you can also snorkel alongside some of the most colourful and magnificent sea creatures you are ever likely to encounter.

If you are interested in seeing the underside of Fiji, there's no better place to get your PADI dive certification. With an incredible selection of dive spots throughout the island nation, you won't have a hard time finding new places to explore every day.

For those who prefer to stay on dry land, there's still plenty to amaze. From Nadi, it's just a 15-minute drive to the Garden of the Sleeping Giant, a plantation hidden away down a bumpy track that houses over 2000 types of orchids.

COCONUT, FISH, RICE, TARO, SWEET POTATOES, CASSAVA AND BREADFRUIT ARE THE MAIN COMPONENTS IN LOCAL FIJIAN DISHES.

OLD MILL COTTAGE CAFÉ in Suva is a popular spot for expats and locals. Traditional Indian fare sits alongside local fish and vegetable dishes. For breakfast and lunch expect to pay AU$12/NZ$16 at the most.

BOUNTY'S BAR AND RESTAURANT in Nadi, is a joint seafood and steak house. This informal pub is popular especially during "Bula Hour" (5-8pm). Best menu items are the grilled steaks and large burgers. You usually can get a meal here after 10pm, when many other restaurants are closed. Mains AU$8-16/NZ$10-24.

SAFFRON in Nadi, is an excellect place to dine offering traditional Nothern Indian & Vegetarian dishes. Main courses AU$8-18/NZ$10-24. Open lunch and dinner.

Or be inspired by where Australia's two largest rivers meet – the junction of the Murray and Darling.

Throughout the year, Mildura plays host to a variety of events, from race meets to jazz festivals, drawing visitors from across the country. In March, the Wentworth Arts Festival showcases live music acts, some of whom perform outdoors in the dramatic setting of the Perry Sandhills. Golfers flock to Golf Week in July, and the Mildura Writers Festival attracts some of the finest writing talent in the country for a series of workshops and lectures.

In August, the Mildura Cup Carnival race meet takes place at the Euston Club Resort, and in September the Mildura Country Music Festival arrives, gathering over a hundred of Australia's finest country music acts in one place. For a unique view of England, there's nothing better than a narrowboat holiday sailing picturesque canals that stretch between historic towns and ancient woodlands. The heart of England, better known as the Midlands, is an area best explored via its many waterways. The joy of a canal boat is that you can moor up in the heart of a city one night, and anchor in a secluded spot amid meadows and woodland the next. Pottering along at a snail's pace gives you the opportunity to relax as well as take advantage of the many canal-side attractions - from countryside walks through bluebell woods to award-winning pubs, historic houses and farmers' markets. Before heading off expert instructors show you how to navigate and run the boat, making it your own private transport through history.

Here's our pick of the best canal boat trips in the UK:

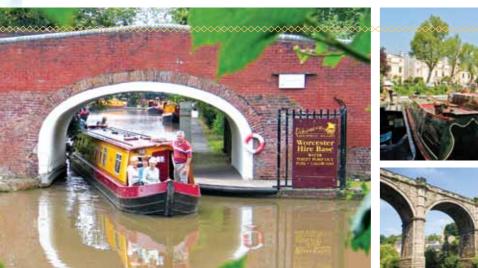

Nottingham

Hire a boat from Sawley Marina on the border of Nottinghamshire, Leicestershire and Derbyshire. Cruise through the historic lace-making city of Nottingham itself, then on past the pretty villages of Fiskerton and Farndon, towards the market town of Newark, famed for its cobbled streets, castle and antique shops.

There are several detours you can take. One that travels via the Attenborough Nature Reserve and another that passes the town of Southwell, justifiably renowned for its Regency architecture, tea shops and National Trust-owned Victorian workhouse.

Heading north from Nottinghamshire, the Chesterfield Canal is a trickier 74-km run, though there are several National Trust properties that can be explored en route, as well as acres of woodland and farmland to enjoy.

On your way back, don't forget to visit Sherwood Forest, home to Robin Hood. Several events take place in the forest throughout the year, including a Robin Hood Festival and ghost hunts.

GO WITH THE FLOW: 1. Narrow boats long and short in Shropshire. 2. The adventure begins, leaving Worcester. 3. You will have the chance to meet plenty of like minded travellers at popular destinations. 4. You can be a social butterfly or embrace the solitude on more isolated routes. 5. Knaresborough Bridge. The U.K.'s canal systems offer a unique view on many of the regions most historic attractions.

Leicester

In the old days, a steam engine would be used to winch boats up the famous hill to the village of Foxton. Nowadays, there's a famous flight of locks to navigate up and down. Be sure to detour via the gorgeous old town of Market Harborough for a cream tea or refreshing pint.

Derbyshire

Derbyshire is one of the prettiest counties in England and a lazy waterways holiday is the perfect way to explore the quaint villages that dot the countryside. The Peak District is famed for its rolling hills, market towns, meadows and atmospheric woodland. En route, make a point of stopping at one of the many farmers' markets that take place around the towns of Glossop, Chesterfield and Knutsford.

Shropshire

Shropshire to the west is a glorious county. The Union Canal here travels through the stunning grounds of Shugborough Hall and past the lovely village of Brewood. This stretch of waterway is marked by its deep wooded cuttings, and there's also adventure to be found in the almost three-kilometrelong Harecastle Tunnel, which is reputedly haunted.

From Blackwater meadow there's a beautiful 32-km stretch of waterway that's lock-free and which takes in the dramatic Pontcysyllte Aqueduct.

Birmingham & Shakespeare country

Birmingham was a booming city during the Industrial Age, and it's still a bustling metropolis with art galleries, great shopping centres and several world-class museums. The Grand Union Canal leads through the city and there are several routes to explore - either north into rural Worcestershire or into Stratford-upon-Avon, Shakespeare's birthplace and site of the Royal Shakespeare Company's theatre o

River cruising in 2012 is a big deal, one of the most popular types of holidays and the trend shows no signs of slowing down

This year is set to be the best year ever to float merrily down a stream, with companies launching new ships (a record four for Viking River Cruises) offering five-star hotel amenities. This is great news for the savvy traveller who stands to gain from more variety, besides the ever popular main European river cruises (see page 29) there are more Asian river cruises being offered and smaller European river options such as the Douro in Portugal and Spain's Guadalquivir.

USA

Aussies continue to flock to US shores

Its official, the high Australian dollar and recent interest rate cuts have made the US a top overseas destination. According to Wotif, more than 90 per cent of Aussies plan to spend their extra cash and bonuses this year holidaying in the US, followed by Thailand, New Zealand, Bali and Fiji.

HAWAII

Home to two of the worlds strangest beaches

Next time you holiday in Hawaii be sure to head to Punalu'u Beach, located on the Big Island. Jet-black sand gives this beach a rather ominous look but the giant endangered turtles that frolic on the beach year round make the trip worthwhile. Next on the list is Papakolea Beach, located near Ka Lae, the southernmost point in Hawaii. The trek to reach it is by no means easy but visitors are rewarded with a green-sand beach. The grains are almost pure olivine, a green mineral, and come from Puu Mahana, a volcanic cone that sits above the beach.

The tiny town with a worldwide Olce

PORT DOUGLAS, WHERE THE GREAT BARRIER REEF MEETS TROPICAL RAINFOREST, IS ONE OF THE MOST UNIQUE AND JAW-DROPPINGLY BEAUTIFUL PLACES IN THE WHOLE OF AUSTRALIA.

A glorious hour-long coastal drive from Cairns, and with year-round sunshine (marked only by the occasional rainstorm during the summer months), this is the place to come for snorkelling, diving, rainforest treks and an authentic experience of Aboriginal culture.

The town of Port Douglas is a great base for visitors. There's no shortage of restaurants, bars, art galleries and shops to explore, and there's also the stunning, familyfriendly Four Mile Beach, a prime spot for kite surfing and swimming.

Close by, the World Heritage-listed Daintree Rainforest brushes the epic sweeping beach of Cape Tribulation. This lush, unspoiled, slightly wild landscape is best discovered on a 4WD safari, though many tour operators also offer helicopter rides that fly over the whole area. Viewed from above, the crystal blue of the sea and the dark tangled jungle contrasting with the searing white beach is a truly spectacular sight.

Another unique way of exploring the region is on an Aboriginal Dreamtime tour. Led by an indigenous guide, visitors hike through private sections of forest, over streams, past sacred sites, learning about dreamtime legends and bush tucker along

Arguably the biggest drawcard of Port Douglas though, other than its glorious beaches, is its proximity to the Great Barrier Reef and some of the most pristine dive sites in the world. The Low Isles, a coral island just 15 km off the coast, is also a popular destination for snorkelling and diving, or even paddle boarding.

In 2012, Port Douglas will be the pole position for a Total Solar Eclipse. This phenomenon will take place at

NAUTILUS DINING EXPERIENCE

Fifty Eight years on the Nautilus restaurant is still a 'Must Do' when in the tropical far North of Queensland. Step into another world and experience a tropical paradise with top class dining in a wonderful outdoor setting.

Try the signature dish 'Whole Coral Trout'. Dusted

in light Asian spices & shallow fried served with green paw paw salad, Thai caramel dressing & chilli jam. This is a signature dish of the restaurant that has been served at Nautilus for 30+ years since the days of Mogens Bay Esbensen who brought the recipe to Australia along with a number of traditional Thai cooking techniques. Coral Trout is a species of reef fish that is related to grouper and coral cod but is not related to the fresh water (river) trout species. The white flesh of the coral trout is prized for its excellent eating qualities being light and flaky with a sweet flavour.

US National Park Experiences

Being at one with nature is every city dweller's dream. If you're planning a holiday in America with the family, schedule some time in the great outdoors with some of America's best national parks.

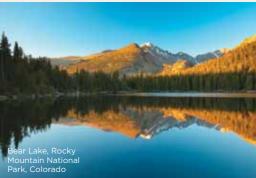

Rocky Mountain National Park, COLORADO

or generations, the Rocky Mountain National Park has been drawing nature lovers from all over the world looking to spot wild animals in the wilderness. This is one of America's most beautiful parks, located between Roosevelt, Arapaho National Forest and Colorado State Forest.

Accessible year round, there's plenty to do in the Rocky Mountain National Park, including fishing, rafting, horse riding and boating. Couples can take a tranquil mountain ride into Roosevelt National Forest, while families can enjoy an easy walk around Bear Lake, a lake high in the mountains with stellar peak views, or the Lulu City walk, which follows a gentle path to the site of an old 1880s gold mining camp.

If a cowboy sing-along is more your thing, join Cowfolk Brad and Kathy Fitch for some acoustic folk, family and western music in Estes Park all summer until mid-August - guaranteed to get toes tapping in the great outdoors.

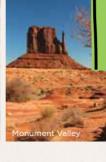

With RCI all your stay options are covered from Vail and Avon, Copper Mountain and Frisco, to Winter Park and Granby. Your only big headache is to decide where to start first! Go on and enjoy the best of both worlds, surround yourself with alpine beauty on day hikes, then return to a town full of amenities.

Sedona ARIZONA

ome of the most spectacular scenery in the world can be found in what's often referred to as "Red Rock Country". Sedona in Arizona is surrounded by towering redrock monoliths that catch the afternoon light in a colourful display that keeps tourists clicking their cameras until sunset. Coffeepot, Cathedral and Thunder Mountain lead the way to the north end of the city where the jawdropping chasm of Oak Creek Canyon waits to take your breath away.

Sedona is known around the globe as a spiritual mecca and is believed to have a unique energy, namely because the neuro-stimulating redorange colour of the rock is thought to enhance the ability to think creatively and solve problems. Therapy on the Rocks, considered one of Sedona's most authentic healing experiences, is run by wellness guru John F. Barnes. His specialty is myofascial release, a type of massage that manipulates connective tissue to help treat everything from chronic back pain to migraines.

The park provides a protected habitat for 355 bird species, 89 mammals and 56 reptiles and amphibian species, so don't forget the camera on a nature walk. The Inner Canyon can be seen by hikers, brave mule riders or river runners, though if you're opting to see it by water, a journey down the Colorado River could take up to three weeks.

families. From Paihia, it's easy to organise boat trips, dolphin excursions, skydiving, fishing, scuba diving and many other land, sea or air adventures.

A cruise around the Bay of Islands can take anywhere from a few hours to a few days. Most sailing trips offer the chance to swim with dolphins and view the much-photographed Hole in the Rock. Several trips also offer the chance to island hop and explore the pristine beaches of Urupukapuka Island. Those seeking an eco-adventure can even join a restoration project to help preserve the fragile ecosystems of the islands.

A short ferry ride across the water from Paihia brings you to the small town of Russell. Back in the 19th century, Russell was the preferred hangout for whalers, adventurers and escaped convicts, earning it the less than salubrious title of "Hellhole of the Pacific". Today it's come a long way, and is now better known as "Romantic New Zealand's biggest music acts playing there.

Kerikeri, once the territory of a brutal Maori chief, is now an upmarket town attracting art lovers and foodies. Kerikeri has a well-deserved reputation for gastronomy thanks to its award-winning restaurants and boutiques selling everything from handmade chocolates to fruit liqueurs. Orchards line the road into town and wineries abound, making this a particularly picturesque place to visit.

All visitors to the Bay of Islands should pay a visit to Waitangi, one of New Zealand's most historic sites. It was here that Maori chiefs and representatives of the English Crown signed the Treaty of Waitangi in 1840. The house and grounds where the treaty was signed is open to visitors. Join a Maori-guided tour to explore the traditional Maori treaty hut, and to hear the legends and history behind the carvings and Maori war canoe that's on display. are a couple of great walks: one along the beach and cliffs towards the golf course, and another through the mangrove forest up to Haruru Falls, where diving cormorants put on a daily display.

A short drive from Paihia is Puketi Kauri Forest, as untouched as it was when the first settlers arrived. Even further north sits Cape Reinga, where the Pacific meets the Tasman Sea - a significant place in Maori legend.

A final stop in this beautiful area (and reachable via a vintage narrow gauge train) is the town of Kawakawa and its famous public toilets. Designed by the Austrian artist Hundertwasser, who believed people meditated on the toilet in much the same way as they do in church, these colourful, wonky public conveniences are a regular stop on the tourist trail.

Just a 45-minute flight from Auckland, or a stunning three to four-hour scenic drive, the Bay of Islands offers a range of activities and opportunities for exploration both on land and at sea, and because of its subtropical climate it's possible to visit all year round.

Did you know that the market scenes in Sex and the City 2 were filmed in Marrakesh, under the guise of being in Abu Dhabi? Magnificent cosmopolitan Marrakesh has long been a fashionable destination, not just for shopping but as a base for soaking up more Moroccan culture than you can wave a handbag at.

Everywhere is a shopper's dream in Marrakesh, as the walled city is a maze of hidden stores bursting with authentic, well-made crafts. For ceramics, head to Akkal, the city's warehouse belt. For tailor made men's and women's clothing, head to Beldi. For homeware and furniture, shop at Ministero del Gusto, owned by designer Alessandra Lippini. Souks (open air markets) are all around you, but the Criée Berbère is worth a special trip. It's a hub of low-lit alleyways that used to be a slave market.

The other famous aspect to this magical city is of course the culture and food. For cultural chaos, head to Djemaa el-Fna, the food stalls there are undoubtedly the best place to eat in Marrakesh. Try harira, a delicious local soup made with lamb or beef, red lentils and vegetables. Snails are a popular cuisine, as are fried aubergines. To drink, try the special ginseng tea with cinnamon and ginger, and for breakfast try the riifa - dough stretched, flattened and folded, and cooked in a frying pan a bit like a pancake.

Other cultural hotspots include the Place of the Dead - the open expanse at the heart of the medina where food stalls, entertainers wielding monkeys and snake charmers will get you paying for photos. And of course the Saadian Tombs, one of the most visited sites in Marrakesh is a must, featuring amazing geometric mosaics from the Arab Saadi dynasty (1554 - 1659), only rediscovered in 1917.

If you want to make like a movie director, visit the lunar landscapes seen in Lawrence of Arabia and Gladiator with a day trip to Ouarzazate. The fortified city of Ait Benhaddou Kasbah is a UNESCO World Heritage Site and has featured in many films. You could also visit the traditional Portuguese harbour, Essaouira, boasting many examples of Moorish and Portuguese art, a silver souk and some incredible woodwork. If you're feeling brave, why not get high in the Atlas Mountains, bumping along the Berber Trail in a 4x4!

Magical Marrakesh has plenty to offer everyone who visits, so there's no need to limit your options just to shopping. [9]

SPICE UP YOUR LIFE MOROCCAN STYLE

In terms of Moroccan cuisine, couscous is the dish most people would be familiar with but it's the clever mix of spices that make Moroccan cooking a standout.

Other characteristic flavours include pickled lemon, olives and dried fruits such as dates and raisins and nuts like almonds mixed with aromatic spices and popular meats such as beef, lamb and chicken more heavily spiced than Middle Eastern cuisine making it distinctively unique.

The tajine is the most commonly used cooking utensil in Moroccan kitchens but some stove top recipes can be equally delicious. After dinner relax with a cup of mint flavoured green tea to aid digestion.

YOU WERE HERE

A golden wedding anniversary in e were lucky to be able to visit RCI headquarters at Jo who was able to help us locate a suitable exchange for us to celebrate our 50th Wedding Anniversary. We settled on "Awana" in the Genting Highlands about 100 Km out of Kuala Lumpur. We were a little apprehensive about how we might get to our Resort as we were novices in regard to a foreign country and the availability of transport within Kuala Lumpur. However, we need not have worried as the Public Transport system within KL and surrounding regional areas is fantastic and cheap. Coach and Rail travel is easy to access and the locals most helpful. Even the taxis were reasonable if you settled on a price before you entered the cab. It cost us about AU$30 to get from KL to Awana.

Upon arriving at Awana, we were pleased with or unit and settled in for an exciting week. We were traveling with friends we had met on our honeymoon and who were also celebrating their Golden Wedding Anniversary with us. The surrounding areas of our resort were lush, green Rain Forest and being in the Highlands, the scenery was spectacular. The Resort was about 6 km from the summit of the Genting Highlands upon which sat the most amazing City. Genting City is composed of six International Hotels, four Casinos, three Theme Parks and kilometres of interlinking plazas, coffee shops, restaurants and shopping arcades. We spent hours shopping, exploring and getting lost in the myriad of escalators and passageways. It was great fun.

The Resort itself is home to an International Golf Course which is beautifully manicured and remarkably cheap to play. The accommodation was good and the unit was serviced every second day. The food was excellent and there were six different Restaurants to choose from. We mostly ate at the hotel dining room where the choices on the enormous buffet were many and varied. We also sampled the food from the American Style Cafe & Bar as well as the Japanese, Korean, Hawaiian and the bistro attached to the Golf Club.

We were able to visit KL on three occasions where we were amazed at the Petronas Towers, the variety of shopping in the up-market areas beneath the towers and the many local markets. We found the "Hop-on Hop off" bus tour excellent to orient ourselves in this large city.

There were free shuttle coaches from Awana to the Genting City and also down to the Genting Skyway. The Skyway was a real highlight as this gave us many trips in the Cable Cars up the mountain to the City. Views were spectacular. Other enjoyable ventures were the visits to the local markets around the Skyway centre and picking our own fresh Strawberries at a local farm In all, a great way to celebrate our Golden Wedding Anniversary thanks to Jo and RCI.
