New 'Art Village' in Jeju Island

Jeju, an island of villages in South Korea, has a new attraction. Southeast of Jeju, a sleepy village Shincheon wakes up from its slumber in an artistic fashion. This quiet, unassuming town is recently transformed into an 'Art Village' dotted with 43 pop art murals and sculptures. It started in 2014, when filmmakers of the movie 'Sunshine' picked Shincheon as a shooting location. A few murals were painted on walls for the shoot. Upon the filmmakers' departure, local artists, young movie makers and the villagers picked up from what was left to transform Shincheon into an 'Art Village'. Art celebrating Jeju's life and culture appeared on buildings and unexpected spaces, breathing fresh air into the area, exciting locals and travellers.

The Art of Eating an Oyster

Throwing back a half dozen oysters is easy; actually appreciating them takes a little know-how.

By Zach Patton

As true oyster lovers know, there's an art to tasting the bivalve's complex flavours. Oyster tasting is a fine art, much like wine. That means appreciating the nuances of an oyster's 'merrior'—the marine counterpart of terroir, all those environmental aspects that shape the taste of wine.

Autumn is a particularly good time to brush up on your oyster-tasting skills. While modern refrigeration and cultivation mean that you can eat oysters all year long—not just in months with an r in their names—oysters develop a deeper, richer flavour in the autumn and winter. East coast oysters build up glycogen to survive through colder months, which makes them taste sweeter and fattier; think of it as marbling in a steak.

Here's how to savour that oyster you're eating, in six sensory stages.

1. THE BOUQUET. Just as you do with a glass of wine, begin by inhaling the aroma of the oyster. That olfactory hit is your introduction to the flavours that make the oyster unique.

2. THE LIQUEUR. Sipping the 'juice' in which the oyster sits can tell you a lot about where it's from. In fact, this is where you get your first hits of salinity, minerality and earthiness. Oysters from rocky coastal areas, for instance, have a more mineral flavour.

3. THE FRONT. With the oyster in your mouth, focus on the taste with the tip of your tongue. This introduces you to the initial flavour, which may then change as you eat it.

4. THE BODY. As you chew the actual oyster itself, concentrate on the texture as well as the flavour. Is it rich and buttery? Salty and snappy? Chewing also brings out an oyster's sweetness.

5. THE FINISH. Oysters linger on the palate longer than a lot of foods. The finish is often when you taste the oyster's umami, that undercurrent of savoury flavour.

6. THE PAIRING. An oyster matched with the right wine or beer is like a perfect marriage. Stick with a light-bodied dry white, such as steel-aged pinot grigio or a Loire Valley muscadet (which many have called the perfect wine for oysters). For beer, think a saison ale, a session beer, a very light IPA or another low-alcohol brew that won't overpower.

Oh, and it's probably best to put away that cocktail sauce. The sweetness and strong horseradish flavour of cocktail sauce obliterate the taste of raw oysters. Rather, try a mignonette, a thin sauce typically made from shallots, cracked black pepper and champagne vinegar. With oysters, you want to accentuate, not overpower their freshness.

Australia

If you're in South Australia, be sure to take time out to try the freshly shucked Coffin Bay oysters, straight from the sea.

(1802 Oyster Bar & Bistro, 61 Esplanade, Coffin Bay; +61 8 86854626; 1802oysterbar.com.au)

New Zealand

Bluff oysters in New Zealand are said to be the most flavoursome, because they are grown in the cold, clean waters of Foveaux Strait till they are plump and juicy. Pick them fresh in season at the Four Square Supermarket in Gore Street.

(Four Square, 54 Gore Street, Bluff 9814, 03 212 8179, foursquare.co.nz)

Japan

Nobody serves more oysters on Miyajima island than the stylish Kakiya. Each oyster is inspected carefully after it comes off the flames by the grill master. Ask for the 'Kaki-ya teishoku' set meal that isn't on the menu.

1 Musée d'Orsay

Paris

Degas' ballerinas, van Gogh's Starry Night Over the Rhone, Cézanne's still lifes—all are on display at the premier museum of Impressionism in France, if not the world. It's located in the Beaux-Arts former Orsay railway station, across the Seine from the Tuileries Garden, and retains the station's original soaring glass ceiling and great hall. musee-orsay.fr

2 Getty Center

Los Angeles

Clad in Italian travertine, this Richard Meier-designed complex in the hills of Los Angeles affords views stretching to the Pacific Ocean. To get here, either walk or take a tram up the steep slope from the parking lot. Within its airy pavilions you'll find Impressionist paintings by the likes of Édouard Manet and, scattered around the estate, sculptures by such greats as Joan Miró and Isamu Noguchi. getty.edu

3 Metropolitan Museum of Art

New York City

The Met is the largest museum in the western hemisphere, having a collection of more than 2 million items spanning antiquity to the present. More than 6 million people annually pass through its galleries. Its Egyptian collection showcases the Temple of Dendur (c. 23–c. 10 B.C.), while European paintings include works by Degas, Rembrandt and Vermeer. metmuseum.org

4 The National Gallery

London

Paintings from the mid-13th century to the early 20th hang on the walls of this Trafalgar Square landmark. The west wing turns the spotlight on the High Renaissance (Michelangelo, Titian and Raphael). In the east wing, 18th- and 19th-century British artists, such as Gainsborough, Constable and Turner, take centre stage. nationalgallery.org.uk

5 Tokyo National Museum

Tokyo

If you have time for only one museum in Tokyo, make it this one. The oldest and largest art museum in Japan holds the world's largest collection of Japanese art and archeological artifacts. Explore the three-storied, newly renovated Tōyōkan (Gallery of Eastern Antiquities), with its collection of Buddhist sculptures and Chinese ceramics from Asia. momat.go.jp

6 Art Institute of Chicago

Chicago

Home to such paintings as Grant Wood's American Gothic, the Art Institute of Chicago is itself a masterpiece. The 1893

Beaux-Arts building is connected to a Renzo Piano-designed wing by a gallery set over railroad tracks. Inside is a collection of Impressionist and post-Impressionist art; 20th- and 21st-century works, including Edward Hopper's Nighthawks and Marc Chagall's stained-glass windows. artica.edu

7 Hagia Sophia

Istanbul

One of the seven wonders of the medieval world and the greatest surviving example of Byzantine architecture, the Hagia Sophia dominates the Istanbul skyline. The emperor Justinian ordered the structure built in A.D. 532 in a bid for eternal glory. To call it grand would be an understatement: The dome is 184 feet high and 102 feet wide. To put that in perspective, the Statue of Liberty without its base could fit underneath with room to spare. Head to the upstairs galleries to view the most intricate mosaics. ayasofyamuzesi.gov.tr

8 National Museum of Modern and Contemporary Art

Seoul

Seoul's only national art museum sits just across the streets from Gyeongbokgung, and showcases over 7,000 modern artworks. You don't have to be an art aficionado to enjoy the large, playful pieces on display. Enjoy free admission to all exhibits every fourth Saturday of the month. mmca.go.kr

9 Whitney Museum of American Art

New York City

This museum began in the 1930s in Greenwich Village with a collection from Gertrude Vanderbilt Whitney. It would later move to West 54th Street and then to Madison Avenue. This year it found a 200,000-square-foot home near the High Line. Among the 18,000 pieces are works by Andy Warhol and Georgia O'Keeffe. whitney.org

10 Museum of Qin Terracotta Warriors

near Xi'an, China

You could easily spend two days or more exploring the archeological wonder near China's ancient capital, Xi'an, two hours by air from Beijing. Thousands of life-size clay warriors, part of the funerary complex of China's first emperor, Qin Shi Huang, stand here to protect him in the afterlife. Historians believe that some 700,000 workers toiled on the mausoleum for more than three decades. Fun fact: Though the soldiers were crafted using molds, each has distinct facial features that were added after assembly. whc.unesco.org

MAGICAL MATAMATA

ROLLING GREEN HILLS DOTTED WITH SHEEP, BIG TREES AND QUAINST STONE BURROWS – IT'S HARD NOT TO IMAGINE REAL MAGIC EXISTS IN MATAMATA, NORTH ISLAND OF NEW ZEALAND.

HOME OF THE HOBBITS

Originally a quiet country town, Matamata was just another pleasant landscape to drive by in the Hamilton-Waikato region of New Zealand. But magic happened. During an aerial search for a location to film Sir Peter Jackson's multi-award winning The Lord of the Rings trilogy, Matamata was discovered.

Here, Alexander Farm owns 1,250-acre of green pastures, huge trees and a small darling lake, drawing the attention of location scout Dave Comer. That afternoon in the year of 1998, Dave negotiated with the farmer and his family, won over their hearts and began his legacy of building the Hobbiton Movie Set.

Stone buildings with quaint doors were tucked into rolling green hills, overgrown with native grasses and wildflowers. There are now 44 Hobbit holes since The Shire's rebuilding in 2010. Hobbiton resembles an idyllic 17th century English country of barberry hedges, trees with hanging apples and pears, lichen-covered fences and rugged paths.

Step into the world of J.R.R. Tolkien's The Lord of the Rings trilogy and The Hobbit, with a fascinating narration by the Movie Set Tour. The popular tour operates every half hour in the summer season. Set off from The Shires Rest Cafe, meandering through The Shire and its Hobbit holes, vegetable gardens, before going round the lake to the Party Tree and The Mill. After, enjoy a local custom-brewed beer at The Green Dragon Inn.

Opened in December 2012, The Green Dragon Inn is Hobbiton's newest addition. There are little pockets of bar areas where you can kick back with a beer in hand. Sample traditional Hobbit fare on The Green Dragon Menu – the beer and ale pie is highly recommended.

For a magical evening of revelry, explore Hobbiton at dusk and dig into a banquet dinner fit for a Hobbit. The Evening Dinner

Tour includes a stroll through Hobbiton Movie Set, with one complimentary beverage from the Hobbit Southfarthing range to be had in front of open fires. Next, be led into The Green Dragon Inn dining room for a table full of traditional Hobbit fare. The evening ends surrealistically with a moonlit walk back into the wandering paths of The Shire, illuminated along the way by pathlights and authentic handheld lanterns.

CONQUER THE FALLS

While fans of Tolkien and Sir Jackson flock to Matamata for Hobbiton, the Hamilton-Waikato region around Matamata has more to offer than meets the eye. Take a 10-minute drive from Matamata to Wairere Falls, the highest waterfall of North Island.

The Wairere Falls Track paves the way to the lower viewing platform located at the base of the falls. Leave your vehicle behind at the carpark on Goodwin Road (off Old Te Aroha Road) and begin your hike from there. A return journey will take approximately an hour and a half.

Voyage through native forest, cross quaint wooden bridges, and take in the views of gentler, smaller cascades. Be amazed by the 153 metres, 2-stage drop Wairere Falls from the viewing platform. Cascading water breaks into little streams, flowing through mossy green rocks and ferns. Laze around on park benches or dip your toes into the refreshing cool waters.

For an even more breathtaking view, climb the rugged stairs leading to the top of Wairere Falls. Feel the world at your feet with a magnificent view overlooking the Waikato plains. The journey between the lower platform and the waterfall's peak will take an extra 2 hours.

LOOKING BACK

was one of the first reinforced concrete buildings in New Zealand. In its heyday, this 16-metre structure served its purpose as a lookout point over the countryside, as an estate office and a men's sleeping quarter.

Today, the tower offers more than just an extensive view. Visit The Firth Tower and its neighbouring buildings for an array of museum displays by Matamata Historical Society. Around the tower are 10 other historic landmarks, including a church, schoolroom and jail. Outside, gardens are welcoming for leisure strolls. Huge oak trees emerge from sprawling lawns, providing cool shade for an afternoon picnic in the tranquil historic nature. www.firhttower.co.nz

DINING IN RECIPES FOR
RESORT MADE MEALS

Cool as a Cucumber

IN HUNGARY, A REFRESHING SALAD
GETS A DASH OF PAPRIKA.

BY CHEF DAVID LAPHAM

Hungarian cucumber salad, called uborkasaláta, typically goes right alongside the main meal. The salad's bright, acidic flavours contrast perfectly with the richness of the country's traditional stews and heavily sauced dishes. The salad can be dressed up with the addition of sour cream or even a small amount of mayonnaise (especially good with fish).

What makes the dish uniquely Hungarian is the country's beloved spice, paprika. Depending on your taste, you can use sweet or hot paprika (or a combination). The good news is that the salad combines peeled cucumbers with simple ingredients, most of which are probably in your pantry.

HUNGARIAN CUCUMBER SALAD

- 2 medium cucumbers
- 1 pinch salt, plus 1 tsp
- 1 tsp freshly ground black pepper
- 1 pinch sugar
- 1/4 cup white or apple cider vinegar
- 1/2 tsp sweet paprika (or more to taste, using a combination of sweet and hot paprikas)
- 1 tbsp sour cream (optional)

Peel the cucumbers and slice very thin with a sharp knife or mandoline. Sprinkle with the pinch of salt, mix and place in a strainer over a bowl 30 to 45 minutes to remove excess water and concentrate cucumber flavour. In a separate bowl, whisk together the remaining salt and the pepper, sugar and vinegar. Add the cucumbers and mix well. Marinate two hours or more. To serve, place the cucumbers on a plate and sprinkle the paprika on top.

Serves 4 to 6.

World's Most Colourful Beaches

Not all beaches are created equal. The next time you daydream about sunning yourself near the ocean, imagine digging your toes into these truly stunning shores of many colours.

By Jessen O'Brien

NOTE: Information may have changed since publication. Please confirm key details before planning your trip.

Hyams Beach

Hyams Beach, Australia

Hyams Beach is said to have the whitest sand in the world. The sand is also fine and soft, ideal for sunbathing. If your vacation style is more active, the clear waters and colourful marine life provide first-rate snorkeling. The beach faces east, offering a spectacular tableau if you can get there in time for sunrise.

Muriwai Beach

Auckland, New Zealand

Pitch-black volcanic sand defines Muriwai Beach, only a 40-minute drive from Auckland. It's a favourite among white seabirds called gannets, whose cliff-top colony polka-dots the landscape. Muriwai's rolling waves make it just as popular among surfers. To join them, you can rent equipment or schedule a lesson at the nearby Muriwai Surf School.

Pink Beach

Komodo, Indonesia

One of the few pink beaches in the world is found on the island of Komodo. Green hills and turquoise water border the rosy shore. In some areas the ocean is so clear, you can make out the coral reef below. While you're there, keep an eye out for oversized Komodo dragons, lizards that take their name from the island.

Pink Sands Beach

Harbour Island, Bahamas

For a blush-tinted beach, head to the Bahamas. Although smaller, Harbour Island is much more laid-back than the casino-laden Nassau, Paradise Island or Cable Beach. Winter, when the temperature settles at about 75 degrees, is an ideal time to visit. Spend your days swimming in the gentle waters and your nights feasting on conch, the local specialty.

Red Beach

Santorini, Greece

Santorini may be known for whitewashed cliff-top towns, like Fira and Oia, but its red sand beach is truly breathtaking. This natural wonder is located minutes from a man-made one, the Minoan ruins of Akrotiri. Admire the red shore from above, or walk down to experience it up close.

Ramla Bay

Gozo, Malta

Legend has it that Calypso's cave in Homer's Odyssey is one that overlooks the orange shore of Ramla Bay, on the Maltese island of Gozo. Although the cave itself isn't much to look at, the climb up to it is worth it for the panoramic view of the curved coastline it offers. The orange sand stretches long and wide, so you can find plenty of space on this popular beach to lie out in.

Papakolea Beach

Naalehu, Hawaii

Olivine lava crystals give this beach its distinctive hue. Getting there's a bit of a hike, but at the end you're rewarded with one of four green shores in the world (the others are in the Galápagos Islands, Guam and Norway). The surrounding cliffs that help isolate and protect this beach are the remains of a cinder cone that is thought to have formed 50,000 years ago.

Pfeiffer Beach

Big Sur, California

Most people head to the central California region of Big Sur for stunning views of the Santa Lucia Mountains rising from the Pacific Ocean. Pfeiffer Beach doesn't make as many travel lists, but its psychedelic purple-streaked shore is just as photo-worthy. Winter storms erode the garnet cliffs that line the cove, causing the rare colour and making the cold season a preferable time to go for the full effect.

Bioluminescent Beaches

Maldives

Beaches in the Maldives sometimes glow in the dark. Certain species of plankton light up like fireflies to scare off predators, resulting in tiny blue lights that cover the shore. Although this bioluminescence has been spotted throughout the Maldives, your best bet is traveling to one of the northern islands: Mudhdhoo or Vaadhoo. If you can, go during a new moon; the darker the sky, the more impressive the illumination.

Rainbow Beach

Rainbow Beach, Australia

You can find more than 70 hues of colour in the sands of Rainbow Beach. The Kabi Kabi people, who originally lived there, believed that Yiningie, a spirit symbolised by the rainbow, fell into the surrounding cliffs during a battle, causing the patchwork dunes. The town of Rainbow Beach lies just south of Fraser Island, a World Heritage site covered in rain forests, eucalyptus trees, mangrove woodland and more.

TATESHINA, CHINO

GREEN GEM OF JAPAN

If waking up to a view of mountainous terrains is your idea of pleasure, Tateshina, Chino in Nagano prefecture of Japan could just be your heaven on earth.

Tateshina Highland, or ‘Tateshina kogen’ in Japanese, is located at northwestern slope of Yatsugatake mountains. A potpourri of sweeping panorama, lavish comforts and natural adventure, this little town is a green gem yet to be fully discovered by the outside world. Locals travel in from all over Japan to escape into the heart of nature — waking up to crisp fresh air, taking in the majestic beauty of mountains and lakes, and admiring cherry blossoms and local arts. Unveil one of Japan’s best-kept secrets of lush greens and languid luxury.

PEAK BEAUTY

Rising majestically at 2899 metres is Mount Akadake, the main peak of Yatsugatake. Legend has it that the Yatsugatake Mountains were once higher than Mount Fuji. Jealousy urged Konohanasakuya-hime, the Goddess of Mount Fuji to tear down Yatsugatake into a collection of volcanic mountains. With the magnificent Mount Akadake and the Southern Alps’ curving smoothly across blue skies, Yatsugatake is breathtaking in the beautiful morning light. Hop on the Kita Yatsugatake Rope Way to soak in the mountainous view while travelling up the summit station at 2237 metres. When night falls, gaze out at the busy skies, lit by twinkling stars.

NATURE VENTURE

For the adventurous at heart, deepen your breathtaking experience by ascending the mountains by foot. Various hiking paths are available for casual hikers to professional alpinists. A popular route is from Minotoguchi stop, taking 4-5 hours for hiking to the peak of Akadake. Northern Yatsugatake is a gentle route perfect for first-timers, with thicker forests blocking out winds and numerous trekking guides available.

LANGUID STROLLS

If conquering mountains is not up your alley, you have the option of breathing in the mesmerising charm of Lake Shirakaba in Yatsugatake-Chushin Kogen Quasi-National Park. Take a leisure stroll to where Mount Tateshina meets Mount Kirigamine. There are pedal boats for cruising on the gleaming lake surface reflecting blue skies, white clouds and rolling mountains. Adding to Tateshina’s allure are two other spectacular water bodies, Lake Tateshina and Lake Megami. Cycle by the scenic lakesides or ice-skate in a nearby rink to feel cool winds breeze through your hair.

SAKURA BLOOM

Head further north of Lake Tateshina to discover Shokoji, a Buddhist temple built in the 1970s. History and culture aside, Shokoji temple is remarkably popular for the full riotous bloom of hundreds of cherry blossoms. The cherry blossom, otherwise known as Sakura, is Japan’s unofficial national flower. This spectacular beauty only lasts a few weeks, so make sure to bring your best dress and camera if you’re visiting Tateshina between late April to early May.

ART ALLURE

Museums not to be missed are the Ito Modern Art Museum, Rene Lalique Museum and Tateshina Teddy Bear Museum — exhibiting over 5,000 teddy bears from all over the world. The latter attracts a surprising number of adults everyday. While Tateshina is sprinkled with distinguished exhibitions and galleries, pay special attention to the Yatsugatake Art Museum. This 1980s odd-shaped building is hidden in a densely forested slope of the mountains, near Haramura village. With an intention to seamlessly introduce a man-made building into a natural environment, Architect Togo Murano designed the space using 25 identical domes. The museum exhibits works by famed sculptor Takashi Shimizu, and Kakusen Tsugane; both artists of Haramura. It also showcases Yatsugatake craftsmen at work, such as quilt making, dyeing, weaving, sakiori weaving and earthenware.

MANICURED LANDS

Horticulture lovers will lose track of time in Barakura English Garden, the first authentic English Garden to open in Japan in the summer of 1990. Founded by Mr. Hohei Yamada, the garden is thriving with 5,000 variants of plants. The most stunning exhibition is that of 180 varieties of old roses displayed gracefully round the year. Catch the annual world-renowned Barakura Flower Show and rub shoulders with renowned horticulturalists, garden designers, musicians and artists from around the globe. Barakura English Garden is accessible with a 20-minute ride on the bus from Chino Station or driving via Suwa Interchange.

TIP: Climbing experts advise beginners to plan for summertime hikes because the temperature at higher altitudes tend to drop significantly as night falls. Remember to pack your warm clothing, waterproof gear, a topographic map and plenty of drinks for hydration.

CANDID DAYS CANDIDASA

Waves crash and curl along the coasts of Candidasa, a hilly seaside town east of Bali, Indonesia. The former fishing village once had the most natural golden shores, attracting droves of sun seekers. Yet with the boom of tourism, beaches were gradually eroded by construction and reef mining activities. Surrealistically, Candidasa took only a few years to rejuvenate its identity as the ultimate holiday relaxation pad. Favoured for the soothing sound of crashing waves, saltwater breeze and quiet peaceful nights, this seaside town has transformed into a coastal retreat for couples and families. On more adventurous days, head out to explore East Bali's exotic and diverse list of cultural, aquatic and mountainous activities.

THINGS TO DO

Beaches located in town are less idyllic, but various breathtaking alternatives surround Candidasa. Hop on a motorbike or hire a driver to head 4.5km east of Candidasa. There, discover one of Bali's most pristine beaches — the White Sand Beach, otherwise known to locals as Pasir Putih Beach.

Cradled between two hills and surrounded by palm trees, the nicely concealed beach exudes tranquil ocean vibes. Laze around for sunbathing, or break into the aquamarine blue water to swim and snorkel. For a literal taste of the ocean, tuck into locally grilled fresh catch. The clandestine nature of this hidden gem makes it an alluring discovery for the adventurous.

If the depth of the ocean intrigues you, Candidasa is where you will want to start your underwater journey. Along the front coast of Candidasa are the islands of Biaha, where experienced divers will enjoy shark cave diving. Tepekong boasts popular dive spot, Canyon, while Mimpang is brimming with coral gardens and busy underwater life.

The eastern side of Bali is home to globally renowned dive sites. Just an hour from Candidasa, world famous USAT Liberty shipwreck sits at the bottom of the sea in Tulamben. Make a short trip to Suraya for muck diving, Amed for reef wall diving, and Padang Bai where white-tipped sharks and blue-spotted rays are common sightings. Lucky divers have reported close encounters with the elusive Mola Molas too.

Wandering into the hinterland by foot is another great way to explore Candidasa. There are many trekking trails to take you through the padi fields and mountainous terrains of Candidasa, even across a traditional bamboo bridge. Most trekking routes pass through sites of historical and cultural significance such as water palaces, coastal temples and villages. If you are one to value authentic insights, hire a local trekking guide and be fully assimilated into the beauty of Bali. Those seeking greater challenges may opt to hike up the island's highest peak, Mount Agung.

THINGS TO SEE

The road to Candidasa is peppered with sacred temples. Stop by Pura Besakih, Bali's largest temple perched on Mount Agung, the holiest mountain in Bali. It dedicates 3 main temples to the Hindu Gods and is surrounded by 18 separate sanctuaries. On the west of Candidasa sits Hindu temple Goa Lawah, also known as Bat Cave. The walls of Goa Lawah are covered with thousands of bats, a jaw-dropping experience not to be missed.

Closer to home is Pura Candidasa, the locals' holy ground with twin temples overlooking the lagoon.

For an authentic village life experience, navigate 4.5 kilometres northwest of Candidasa and step into the ancient world of Tenganan Village (Tenganan Pegringsingan). It is one of the oldest traditional Balinese villages, and has preserved the pre-Majapahit Balinese culture and customs of the Bali Aga community. Many of the temple festivals attract visitors, with most people planning their itinerary around witnessing the annual ceremonial fight Perang Pandan (pandanus leaf war). Male villagers will put on traditional clothes and battle each other using thorny pandan leaves to celebrate Indra, the God of War.

Tenganan village is also famed for Geringsing, Bali's magic cloth. Using the double ikat (double tie) technique exclusive to the Tenganan community in Indonesia, a single piece of this rare textile takes up to 3 years to weave. Naturally, Geringsing is the traditional textile of Tenganan. The locals believe wearing the Geringsing on one's shoulders during ceremonies brings them protection.

Thrilling
Tioman

<< TIOMAN, MALAYSIA

Sunset of a Jetty in Pulau Tioman

Coral Reefs at Pulau Tioman

CRYSTAL-CLEAR WATERS AND A RICH MARINE ECOSYSTEM HAVE MADE MALAYSIA'S BLUE GEM PULAU TIOMAN A HAVEN FOR PROFESSIONAL DIVERS AND ADVENTURE ENTHUSIASTS.

Located in Pahang, Tioman lies 32 km away from the eastern coast of Malaysia. The 20km stretch of land comprises its own set of island, each a treasure trove of aquatic life and activity.

If you're a fan of the classic 1950s musical "South Pacific", the cerulean blue waters of Tioman will strike you as familiar. Serving as a silver screen worthy backdrop and named one of the world's most beautiful islands by Time magazine, Pulau Tioman has made a name for itself as a noteworthy vacation spot.

The prime activity holiday-goers head to Tioman for is diving, or at least, snorkelling – something that cannot be missed when you visit the locale. Small, uninhabited islands like Coral Island and Reggis Island are the ultimate exploration spots. Their pure waters showcase a bustling subterranean metropolis of coral, sea urchin and other marine wonders.

If you want to encounter wildlife beyond the rich waters of the islands, Tioman still has much to offer. Home to 45 mammal species, 138 bird species and other unique creatures like the Red Giant Flying Squirrel and the Tioman Walking Catfish, you're bound to spot some local fauna when you venture out. For a start, trek through the Mukut village to the Asah waterfall. If you're not too busy diving into the refreshing pool below, you can catch a glimpse of the birds and monkeys that call the surrounding rainforest home.

weekenders TIOMAN, MALAYSIA

For something a little more adrenaline pumping, opt for water sports like water skiing or windsurfing. You can even get your diving license for under 250 USD in one of many diving centres.

Although there's not much by way of shopping in Tioman, many duty-free shops have sprung up around the islands, offering goods like chocolate and liquor. Make sure you have spare space in your luggage to stock up on everything from clothing to kitchen utensils at considerably low prices.

To avoid the monsoon season, visit Tioman between March and October when it's sunny and perfect for beachside lounging. Several resorts and ferry services do not operate during the monsoon season due to the heavy rains.

Tioman is most commonly accessed by ferry from the mainland of Mersing. Although it has its own airport, it is only frequented by one airline, flying from Singapore or Kuala Lumpur. Travelling within Tioman is often done either by jeep, or on foot. While you're there, you can hire a speedboat for some island-hopping.

Makati, Business District of Metro Manila

Manila Bay at night, in Pasay, Metro Manila

CITY LIGHTS AND TOWERING BUILDINGS ILLUMINATE THE CITY SKYLINE OF PHILIPPINES’ BUSY NATIONAL CAPITAL REGION, METROPOLITAN MANILA.

Despite its name, Metro Manila encompasses more than just the capital of Philippines. Cities including Quezon, Parañaque and Makati all combine to form a 638.55 km<sup>2</sup> of concrete jungle bursting with life.

<< METRO MANILA, PHILIPPINES

One of the most populous urban areas in the world with just under 12 million people, Metro Manila has something for everyone, whether you’re a food lover, history buff or shopaholic.

A melting pot of races and religions, the city is chock full of cultural hotspots like Chinatown, Little India and Japantown. A mix of beliefs from all over the globe has spawned a myriad of cathedrals, temples and other remarkable religious sites like the Golden Mosque whose dome comprises actual gold.

Being a former Spanish colony, it also holds many historic remnants of Latin American culture. One such vestige is the Intramuros, meaning ‘within the walls’ in Spanish. Constructed in the late 16th century by the Spanish colonial government as defence against foreign attacks, it still proves a formidable sight to this day. History enthusiasts will also enjoy the National Museum of the Philippines, which features everything from ancient fine arts to winged daggers used by the Mandaya, an indigenous tribe.

When you’re craving a bite or two, you’re spoilt for choice in Metro Manila, with everything from local delights to casual western dining and even the occasional Korean BBQ joint. Eateries like Movie Stars Café and The Singing Cooks & Waiters promise unforgettable dining adventures.

Named one of the best shopping destinations in Asia, Metro Manila is one place you can definitely shop till you drop. Ranked 3rd largest shopping centre in the world, the 16 hectare SM City North EDSA mall in Quezon alone should fulfil all your shopping needs and wants. For a retail experience with a local touch, head instead to tiangge complexes like the one in the Greenhills shopping centre. Tiangges are small makeshift stalls where goods are sold at very low prices and can be gained by a friendly round of haggling with the store owners.

Schedule your trip between January and May, during the dry period. Situated in the tropics, the capital is susceptible to heavy rains and even monsoon-induced flooding from June to December.

You can get to Metro Manila through direct flights to its international airport, or by boat, bus and rail from other areas of the Philippines. Getting around the city is a breeze with your choice of railway, bus or car. Alternatively, you can travel like a native with local forms of commode such as rickshaws and the more favoured jeepney.

The Two Tales of India

YVES KANGLEON AND OLIVIA DE VERA EXPERIENCE THE FAMED WONDERS OF COLOURFUL INDIA, AND SHARE FIRSTHAND JUST WHAT THE COUNTRY HAS TO OFFER – FROM ITS NATURAL BEAUTY TO THE INCREDIBLE CULTURE.

Written by RCI Associate:
Yves Kangleon
Manager, Revenue Management

I was in India during the Diwali festivities in November 2015. I have long intended to visit, but travelling solo requires intense logistics planning. So when some friends started planning for a trip to India, I unabashedly invited myself along. We travelled from Singapore to Kolkata, and to Bodh Gaya. Then we were at Varanasi, travelling to Delhi, to Agra, and back to Singapore.

India is a very interesting destination. The trip was, for me, a sensory overload of colours, noises and aromas. It was also a unification of co-existing contrasts. Bodh Gaya and Varanasi are great examples. Both are epicentres of the world's two major religions, Buddhism and Hinduism respectively; yet trade and scams take place just within a kilometer radius from the sacred spaces. While some areas of the country are very dense and packed with its people, other areas boast sprawling lawns sprinkled with beautifully symbolic tombs.

Poverty is everywhere — invisible, if you spend your entire stay in India luxuriating amidst your first class accommodation. But head out, and you will be pleasantly welcomed by warm, huge smiles despite the less-than-ideal living conditions of most of its citizens.

As one blogger so succinctly puts it, “you don't visit India, you experience it.” I highly recommend a trip down to India for an experience of a lifetime.

GO GOA

“You don't visit India, you experience it.”

India is a spectacular burst of colours, spices and traditions. From sacred temples to dazzling landscapes, beautiful people to the majestic wildlife, India unceasingly surprises with unique experiences. Hugging the country's western coastline and bounded by the Arabian Sea is a glorious slice of India, Goa. Nowhere else in India will you experience the soothing serenity of Goan midday languor. In place of bustling cityscapes are clear skies, sand and sea. Goa may be the smallest state of India, but you will discover brilliant beaches, spice plantations, gentle rivers, ancient cathedrals and even spot a dolphin or two in this pocket-sized charmer.

Lush greenery, clear blue skies, crisp morning air and endless mountain folds are just some of the things I imagined North India to be. When I arrived, it was exactly that and more. This was my second trip to India and people are still asking “why India?” in bewilderment. But my reasons for loving this destination just kept multiplying.

Before my first visit to this wonderful country, I read that India is a feast for all your senses. Its colours, sounds, smell, tastes and texture do not timidly greet its visitors — everything rushes in when one least expects it. And that is one of the charms of India. You'd be surprised, shaken, amazed, and wondering why you put off the trip in the first place.

But North India is somewhat different. We felt it when our domestic flight landed in Chandigarh, when the cold mountain air touched our faces. We felt it upon arriving at Kalka and boarding the Toy Train, skirting around the mountain and going through 102 tunnels, 800 bridges and 900 curves. We felt it the minute we reached Shimla town.

North India is as colourful and interesting as the main cities, and yet more laid back – as if allowing its visitors time and peace to admire the beautiful nature it is blessed with.

I stayed in one of the RCI resorts called Toshali Royal View in Shimla, on one of the many hill stations in the Himachal Pradesh. The property lies outside the Shimla town and its backyard is a lush pine tree forest, with endless mountain ranges as backdrop. During January to February when the winter season is at its peak, the whole place is covered with a blanket white, with pine trees dusted in snow — it is easy to imagine stumbling into Narnia. Each unit in the resort has a balcony with a breathtaking view of the pine forest and mountains. The resort offers hiking tours that brought us down an enchanting path through the pine forest, the apple orchard, and some small villages.

Travelling to Shimla town is an adventure on its own, for we had to drive along very scenic winding roads with the occasional sightings of yaks. Shimla town is very clean and it was relaxing to walk around The Mall, stopping every so often for a comforting cup of masala chai. Get lost in the trinkets on display at The Mall, with its local shop houses, tea stalls, restaurants and cafes. The prices are only a fraction of what you get in big cities. I couldn't resist the many beautiful colours and patterns of pashmina scarves, and packed home over a dozen!

Overall, it was a very tranquil vacation — just the perfect cap after our adventures in New Delhi-Agra.
