he world is simply awesome. No matter where you are on this planet, you are never far away from a natural spectacle that inspires and amazes. This issue highlights a few of nature's wonders that we should all experience at least once in our lifetime.

There's no better place to start than Scandinavia. North of Europe, the region is blessed with breathtaking sights like the Northern Lights or Aurora Borealis and our front cover has never looked more bewitching. The best time to experience the Lights is during The Polar Nights, when the Sun, as if on cue, remains hidden and the skies transform into a perfect canvas for the Aurora's surreal colors. The region is also famous for its ancient fjords and natural hot springs.

If bright lights of the city are more your thing, we have a few suggestions that would break the monotony: be prepared to paint the town in Alicante, Spain; live it up in Lake Tahoe or Boracay; wine and dine in Yantai or North South Wales, Australia, just to name a few.

Naturally, we also have your favorites: helpful travel and shopping tips, the latest additions to our resort portfolio, your special RCI Moments Contest and, (drum roll, please) the very first winner of "How Was Your Holiday?".

Do check out our social media platforms which will help you discover more about the world's best vacations and how to enjoy them all at your fingertips.

Don't we wish our holidays can last forever? Well, with Endless Vacations, they can...

Scandinavia

North of The Beaten Track.

Scandinavia is a historical and geographical region of Northern Europe. Scandinavia is defined as the three kingdoms that historically shared the Peninsula. They are Denmark, Norway and Sweden. Today it also includes Finland and Iceland. Each country has distinct charms and irresistible highlights. Together they offer a smorgasbord of thrills, entertainment, and unique natural attractions. But first a brief introduction to help you get acquainted with the countries that make up this incredible region.

Denmark is the southern-most Scandinavian country. It is also the smallest. It consists of the Jutland peninsula and over 400 islands. Bridges link some of the islands to the mainland. Denmark's low lying terrain is dotted with low hills, windmills and traditional thatched cottages. Copenhagen is the capital of Denmark and home to the little mermaid. This "friendly old girl of a town" is a bustling metropolis with shopping, culture and nightlife par excellence, yet is still small enough to be intimate, safe and easy to navigate.

Also called "The Land of Vikings" and the "Land of the Midnight Sun" because here the sun doesn't set for months on end. Norway is also the northernmost country in Europe. It's famous for its deep fjords, trolls and wooden churches. Oslo, its capital is the largest city of Norway, and the third largest city in Scandinavia. In 2010 it was ranked as the most expensive city in the world. Still there are bargains to be enjoyed during the Oslo's seasonal sales in January and August.

Sweden boasts numerous lakes and is the largest of the Scandinavian countries - both in area and population. Stockholm, the capital is made up of 14 islands connected by some 50 bridges. The city is lively, and cosmopolitan with modern Scandinavian architecture featuring lots of brass and steel, complementing fairytale towers, a captivating Old Town (Gamla Stan) and lots of green space. Refreshingly, over two-thirds of the city is dedicated to waterways, parks and green spaces.

With a surprisingly mild climate, Iceland is Europe's westernmost country, and the second largest island in the North-Atlantic ocean. It's an avid photographers paradise offering spectacular scenes of volcanoes, glaciers, geysers, and waterfalls. Reykjavik is the capital and largest city of Iceland. It is the center of Icelandic culture and the tourist capital of Iceland. Reykjavik still maintains its old world charm and visitors will have the opportunity to experience Icelandic life untouched by commercialism.

Finally there's Finland. Hundreds of thousands of islands and lakes beckon to be explored. Helsinki or Helsingfors is the capital. Founded in 1550, the "Daughter of the Baltic" has been the Finnish capital since 1812, when it was rebuilt by the tsars of Russia along the lines of St Petersburg. Today, Helsinki is a vibrant metropolis with a charming a small-town feel. The best time to visit is in summer, when Finns peel off their overcoats and flock to outdoor bars and cafes to enjoy the sunshine.

Getting Around: It's Easier Than You Think

It may seem a little daunting, but Scandinavia is well connected by air, sea, rail, and road or a combination of them. But two of the most convenient ways are by air and ferry. All the main cities have international airports, and even some smaller cities cater to international flights. Almost all European airlines service Scandinavian airports.

A more scenic mode of transportation is the ferry. Major coastal cities are connected by ferry lines, and the larger long-distance ferries are cruise ships, which feature decks full of shops, restaurants, spas, and saunas. Longer routes are usually conveniently scheduled to sail at night, so you arrive fresh at your destination, not to mention you'll also save on accommodations. (If you travel by ferry to Norway or pass through Åland, take advantage of Tax Free sales on board, since Norway is not part of the EU. For the same reason the Stockholm-Helsinki ferry, is a great place for a drink or two as you escape the heavy taxation on alcohol.)

Never Run Out Of Things To Do

The region is famous for its spas, hot springs, fjords, skiing, hiking and music festivals. It also offers visitors over 300 historically and culturally fascinating castles, chateaus and manor houses from various periods, especially in Denmark and southern Sweden. Kronborg Castle, the setting for Shakespeare's Hamlet, and the ancient renaissance-style Egeskov Castle, located close to Hans Christian Andersen's birth place, are just a start.

But definitely one of the most memorable, and awe-inspiring sights is definitely not man-made. The Northern Lights or Aurora Borealis is a natural phenomenon that paints the night sky with unearthly, surreal colors. The Lapland (the northern part of Finland, Norway and Sweden) offer ringside seats to the Lights which usually reach their peak in September and March, but are equally mesmerising in October and April. True to its name, the Lights can best be seen around midnight.

The Midnight Sun is another natural phenomenon that occurs in Norway, Sweden and Iceland. Unbelievable as it sounds the sun is visible even at midnight. A full 24 hours of sun a day makes it easier to plan outdoor activities at leisure. The best times to bask in endless sunlight is from May 14 - July 30. Take advantage of this phenomenon by indulging in the region's more popular activities. 24 hours of sunlight may take some getting used to and your concierge will be happy to help you acclimatise.

Conversely, Polar Nights are an equally unique experience for travelers. This phenomenon can last 2-3 months.

In northern Norway's Hammerfest (northern-most city of the world) the sun remains hidden for most of the time. During Polar Nights, the landscape is covered in snow, and this beautifully reflects the light of the stars above. Polar Nights are the perfect time to watch the Northern Lights dance across the sky.

In Scandinavia, whale watching is another popular activity, and many travelers choose to go whale watching in Norway or Iceland. Adventurous travelers can even sign up for special whale watching safaris which allow a once in a lifetime opportunity to swim with the whales! The best months are between April and October. Whale safaris out of Iceland are very popular as one quarter of the world's whales have been recorded in its nutrient-rich waters.

Closer to land you may want to venture out to Lapland which straddles the northern parts of Norway, Sweden and Finland. The indigenous Sami call the area home. In fact, they have inhabited the northern arctic and sub-arctic regions of Scandinavia and Russia for at least 5000 years. They eke out a livelihood through fishing and the rearing of reindeer. They are nomadic and keeping track of their whereabouts can be an adventure in itself.

Music To Your Ears

If music is your passion, then Scandinavia, and in particular Denmark, will satisfy all your desires. Scandinavia is known for its many music festivals during the summer months. After months of chilly temperatures, Summer is welcomed with unabated entertainment. Some of the most popular music extravaganzas are:

Roskilde Festival in Denmark, early July - One of the world's most famous rock festivals, it draws a crowd of 70,000.

Ruisrock in Finland, also in July - Finland's largest music festival, held on an island near Turku.

Hultsfred in Sweden, July - Sweden's main rock festival, takes place in southern Sweden.

Quart happens in Norway, June/July - Norway's main rock festival, takes place in Kristiansand in southern Norway.

Iceland Airwaves rocks in October - A progressive, trendsetting, music festival that attracts around 2000 visitors every year, besides the many locals showing up.

Scandinavian Buffet Like No Other

The cuisine of the region are quite similar, although each country does have its signature dishes. Seafood features prominently on restaurant menus, although beef, pork and chicken are more common in many everyday dishes. Potatoes are the main staple, most often simply boiled. Fresh herbs are used to accentuate the ingredients. Famous pan-Scandinavian dishes include pickled Herring, meatballs, smoked Salmon and Smörgåsbord, a popular lunch option with bread, herring, smoked fish, cold cuts and more. Bread is served with all meals and comes in dozens of varieties, with dark, heavy rye bread being a specialty.

And, of course, there's the delicious Scandinavian pastries, more popularly known around the world as Danish.

Scandinavia may seem like a distant world to most travelers, but it's closer than you think. It's merely a short hop from most major European cities. But the rewards are immense and the memories of your holiday here are well worth traveling off the beaten path for.

Do's:

- Offer to buy a drink if you've made a new friend in a bar. But keep in mind, Finns can hold their drinks well.
- Use a fork and a knife when eating. No food is finger food in Finland if the silverware is available.
- Always wear your seatbelt in Norway, as they strictly enforce car safety.
- The dress code for Norwegian working places and schools are laidback. Collar shirt and jeans are acceptable.

Don'ts:

- If are invited to someone's home, take off your shoes before entering the apartment.
- Stay until kahvi and pulla (coffee and bun) have been served.
- Visit without calling first. The door may not open without a prior notice, especially on weekends.
- In Norway, the personal space is very big. Avoid greeting people with other than a firm handshake.

Boracay

Never A Dull Moment

Boracay is an island of the Philippines located approximately 315 km (200 miles) south of Manila. In 1990, it was voted by the BMW Tropical Beach Handbook as one of the best beaches in the world and in 1996 by British publication TV Quick as the world's number one tropical beach. Decades ago, Boracay Island was a possessively guarded secret so only a few knew of its existence. Tourism only began to develop in the 1970s. One story claims that a foreign movie crew accidentally "discovered" this island paradise. Others maintain that it was the German traveler, Jens Peters whose book turned a quiet secret to one of the best beach destinations in the world.

Life's A Beach

Boracay Island has more than a dozen unique beaches and many coves. Most of these beaches have the same powdery white sand for which the island is famous for around the world. Boracay's two PREMIER tourist beaches are White Beach and Bulabog Beach.

White Beach is a famous stretch of white sand where it all happens. The major attractions here are sunbathing under swaying palm trees or on the sparkling white sand. Wading and snorkeling are popular here, as the waters are shallow. For the more adventurous, skim boarding, banana boat rides, and sailing are excellent options.

Bulabog Beach comes alive during the early months of each year when windsurfers, and kite surfers skim across its waters. Amateurs and professionals take advantage of the strong winds as they race from one end to the other. The strong winds last until June or July, when the southwest monsoon begins. A paradise for those who love playing on the azure waters, Bulabog Beach offers a quiet alternative to White Beach.

Dive In, The Water's Great

There are over 20 dive sites within a 30 minute boat ride of the island. And they cater to both beginner and experienced divers. From easy beach dives to deep drop-offs, from wreck dives to fast drift-dives and even night dives. Regardless of your experience, you'll have excellent opportunities to encounter sharks as well as manta rays and turtles. You can enjoy close-up views of soft and hard coral, sponges, nudibranches, sea stars and other denizens of the sea. For the more passionate, dive safaris, from one day to one week, are also available for exploring more distant sites aboard comfortable, fully equipped dive boats.

These are just some highlights of Boracay. The island like its sea is teeming with life. The question you have to ask yourself is what kind of island holiday you desire.

Do's:

- If you are diving, ensure that you're properly qualified.
- Always dive with a buddy.
- Sun protection is a must.
- Take time to relax, and enjoy doing nothing.
- Explore the many beautiful beaches.

Don'ts:

- Never do a dive beyond your capability.
- Beware of rip tides, even in calm waters.
- Monsoon winds can be very strong, play it safe.
- Stay out of the water when under the influence of alcohol.
- Refrain from sea food that isn't properly cooked.

HOW TO GET THERE

The quickest way to travel to Boracay Island, is via Manila's domestic terminal. The two flight options you have, are to fly directly to either the cities of Kalibo or Caticlan on Panay Island.

The flight time to either city is 1 hour.

The airlines that travel to either Kalibo or Caticlan are Philippine Airlines, Asian Spirit, Cebu Pacific or Air Philippines.

Lu Gu Hu

Surprise Yourself

Lugu Lake is called the “mother lake” by the Mosuo people, an ethnic tribe that have lived in the region for centuries. In Mosuo culture women play a dominant role in the family hence the region is also referred to as the “The Kingdom of Women”.

The lake is thought to have been created by a geological fault millions of years ago. It is an alpine lake which simply means it sits above sea level. In fact at an elevation of 2,685 metres it is the highest lake in the Yunnan Province. The lake is rimmed by mountain ranges and is so large it boasts five islands four peninsulas, 14 bays and 17 beaches. Needless to say, it's home to some of China's most spectacular scenery.

Emerald Seas

Instead of coral reefs, the freshwater lake is perfectly suited for sea grass giving certain areas of the lake an emerald sheen. Sea grass attracts a wide variety of marine life which in turn are irresistible to birds that prey on them. During the autumn and winter months thousands of birds visit the sea grass. A great way to experience this avian spectacle is to venture out onto the sea grass in paddle boats. An old wooden bridge spans part of the lake and makes a picturesque picture with its winged visitors flying above it.

The Mosuos, Yi, Han and Tibetans who inhabit the area live a harmonious life. And it's not unheard of to hear melodious voices singing about the beauty, romance and love for the area.

Gemu Goddess Mountain

At 3,754 meters above sea level, Gemu Goddess Mountain is the highest point along the lake. To reach it and the spectacular views it offers, travel from Dazu Naxi Village, your path will take you through a Cypress forest. Once you've reached the peak you'll also discover both the Goddess Temple and the Goddess Cave. The Mosuos consider this mountain sacred. You'll feel blessed too when you realise that this vantage point reveals Lugu Lake as a crescent moon. During the Mosuo festival to honour the Goddess, hundreds of people form a long colourful dragon as they circle the mountain while singing praises to her.

Mosuo Villages

The Mosuos are a primarily agrarian society, and their daily life focuses on raising crops and caring for livestock.

They are largely self-sufficient, able to raise everything they need for day-to-day life. Because of their matriarchal culture, Mosuo's homes are distinct from the other tribes that inhabit the lake. Mosuo homes are basically four rectangular structures, built in a square, with an open central courtyard. Animals and humans live together. The first floor is dedicated to the livestock, such as water buffalo, horses, geese, and poultry. And also cooking and dining. The second floor is for storage, and house the private rooms of Mosuo women. The rest of the family sleep in communal quarters. A visit to a Mosuo village is an excellent way to understand this unique culture. Two famous villages are Luoshi and Lige. The naturally beautiful scenery, and the slow-paced idyllic life is the perfect antidote to modern civilisation.

You'll find the village folk are forthcoming and hospitable, and are more than happy to share a meal of hot-pot or a cup of Tibetan butter tea with you.

Do's:

- Take a cruise on the lake.
- Take in the spectacular sunrise.
- Ensure you have enough cash as their are no ATMs handy.
- Sun protection is important.
- When on the lake wear a life-jacket.

Don'ts:

- Refrain from discussing their marriage customs.
- Ladies must not sit on the brick bed.
- The temperature can change drastically so don't wander out without extra warm clothing.
- When sailing on the lake, women should not sit at the bow.

A533 HIVE @ Lugu Hu Holiday Hotel

Yantai lies in northeastern Shandong province. Yantai, which means “Smoke Terrace”, was a small fishing village during the Ming Dynasty. Wolf-dung fires were lit on today’s Yantai Hill to warn the fishing fleets of approaching pirates during the Ming Dynasty. However, the arrival of the British and many other western nations in the late 19th century, turned what was once a backwater into a busy port. Taking advantage of its geographical location on China’s coast, near the entrance to the Bay of Bohai, Yantai has developed into a very important harbor in China, and one of the three most prosperous and fastest developing cities in Shandong Province. Surprisingly, it’s only recently that the city has become popular with travelers.

Although Yantai is located in North China, monsoons regulate the climate, keeping it warm and humid. The average annual temperature is 25°C. Exquisite fruits and vegetables are plentiful in Yantai. The long coastline and over 60 islands richly reward seafood lovers with a bounty of sea-cucumbers, abalones, scallops, crabs and prawns. The picturesque city was named by the United Nations as one of the most inhabitable places in the world.

Taste of China

Yantai is the birthplace of Lu Cuisine (i.e., one of the eight famous regional cooking schools of China, the other seven are the Cantonese, the Chuan, the Hui, the Mei, the Su, the Xiang and the Zhe schools of cuisine). Traditional Lu dishes figure prominently in the restaurants throughout Yantai, though Lu Cuisine is far from being the only type of cuisine available. In recent years, seafood dishes have outstripped Lu Cuisine in popularity. In addition, wheaten food such as noodles and dumplings are common.

Yantai Highlights

Kunyu Mountain offers awe inspiring scenery. The mountain is covered by lush, ancient trees, among which flow numerous clear streams. Countless mysterious and deep gorges largely remain untouched by human beings. The original ecosystem is well-preserved, making the charming and inviting natural beauty worthy of your appreciation. The mountain lays claim to over 1000 species of plants and animals.

Mount Kunyu is also famous for its religious and cultural heritage. It was revered by both Taoist monks and Chinese emperors, who came in search of the elixir of life, the belief in the existence of which was widespread at the time. Kunyu Mountain is the perfect tourist destination all year round. In Spring, green valleys are filled with wild flowers. In Summer, its cool temperatures make it the an ideal escape from the heat. In Autumn, orange maple trees and dark green pine needles create a riot of colours. While in winter, the land is a blanket of white.

Moushi Manor is as old as the city itself. It is the residence of generations of Mou Molin Family, the wealthiest and most powerful landlord of the Qing Dynasty. It is also the best-preserved and is typical of the homes of landlords of the Qing Dynasty. The manor contains six courtyards, covering an area of 20,000 square meters, with over 480 rooms. The buildings are colorful and adorned with flowers and animals.

River tiles of different colors give the walls the look and pattern of a tiger. Not surprisingly, these walls are called “tiger walls”. Legend has it that coins were inserted in between the tiles to fill the space between them and the smoothness of the whole wall. The most resplendent wall in the complex is made of 386 hexagon-shaped tiles. Each of the 386 tiles bears a hexagonal flower made of pebbles. Together the 386 tiles form a large mural comprising hundreds of flowers.

Yantai, may be on the road less traveled but it won’t disappoint the traveler. If anything, it will surprise and reward you with many delightful memories.

Do’s:

- Bring a convertor because the voltage for China is 220V.
- Remember to ask for bottled or mineral water. Tap water is not potable in China.
- Visit historical sites and immerse yourself in the Chinese culture.

Don’ts:

- It’s best to exchange your money only in a bank.
- Tipping is not commonly practiced here. However, for those taking trips with guides and drivers, tipping is expected.

HOW TO GET THERE

You can fly to Yantai from Beijing. A number of airlines are available including Shandong Airlines, Air China, and China Eastern Airlines. Not all airlines have daily flights.

The Cameron Highlands is one of Malaysia's most extensive hill stations covering an area of 712 square kilometers. At an altitude of 1,200 metres. Not surprisingly, the temperature seldom rises above 25°C during the day. At night, however, it can reach a chilly 12°C.

In 1931, the British and the locals moved in to settle on the slopes of the mountain. They were soon followed by tea planters and vegetable farmers who found the fertile soil, good drainage and cool climate to be especially suitable for the growing of their crops. Today, the area is as well known for its tea estates, boasts a golf course, several old English cottages, three inns, two boarding schools, a dairy, nurseries, vegetable farms, a Government Rest House and an Experimental Agricultural Station.

The hill station not only has an extensive network of roads, it is also the highest point on the Malaysian Peninsular which is accessible by car.

reservations as there's very little to do after the sun goes down. You can satisfy your craving for English, Chinese, Indian, Malaysian, Thai and Japanese. You'll find most restaurants are located in Tanah Rata and Brinchang districts, however, most locals dine in the districts of Tringkap and Kampung Raja. Discover sumptuous Chinese steamboat meals (a 'do-it-yourself' meal, cooked in steaming hot broth), spicy Indian banana leaf meals (a spicy, hearty fare of rice and curries), and typical Malay delicacies.

Some notable 'must-try' are the Big Strawberry Farm Cafe for everything strawberry- strawberry fried ice cream, strawberry waffles, strawberry sundaes, strawberry shakes, fresh strawberries. So it goes without saying, that if you're planning a trip to Malaysia's Cameron Highlands, there's one thing you must never forget to bring along: an insatiable appetite.

Do's:

- Try the locally famous cuisine.
- Ask the locals for restaurant recommendations.
- Dress appropriately for the weather.
- Do remove your shoes when entering a local home.
- Explore the outdoor attractions.

Don'ts:

- Never wander off the beaten track. It's easy to lose your way in the surrounding jungles.
- Remember you're in a multicultural, multi-religious region.
- Never point with your right forefinger. The thumb is preferred.
- Refrain from eating with your left hand.

BUYER BEWARE

It's easy to forget ourselves when shopping overseas, especially on holiday. You're in a great mood. You desperately want a memento. You want to share the holiday with family back home by buying them gifts. And, oh my goodness, everything is so cheap.

But it pays to keep in mind the following to ensure your shopping is as enjoyable as your holiday.

- 1 Shop around and compare costs and services.
- 2 Don't be pressured into buying immediately.
- 3 It's alright to bargain even if the item has a fixed price.
- 4 Check items very carefully. You can't return them once you get home.
- 5 Know what you are paying for.
- 6 Ask for warranties that are recognized in your country.
- 7 Check to see if you can claim on any Value Added Tax (VAT).
- 8 If you are entitled to a VAT refund, you must normally apply for the refund before you leave the country where you bought the items.
- 9 Be aware that in some countries, items such as artwork and antiques may require an export license. This may incur additional fees. Ask before you buy.
- 10 Ask specifically about return and exchange policies.
- 11 Before you travel, familiarize yourself with your country's customs policies regarding prohibited and restricted items.
- 12 Beware of prices that are "too good to be true" and merchandise that may be counterfeit.
- 13 Insurance can protect you in case your purchase is lost or damaged in shipping.
- 14 Check handicrafts made from raw materials carefully - don't buy items showing signs of insect infestation or damage.
- 15 If you plan on sending your shopping home by freight or mail, declare the contents accurately - penalties will apply for false declaration.

"Travel is fatal to prejudice, bigotry, and narrow-mindedness." – Mark Twain

Travel not only broadens the mind, it introduces us all to varied cultures, sights, and sounds. When you travel, talk to other tourists and locals. Almost everyone will recommend favorite places to stay or eat, or an attraction that is a must-see. Eat where the locals do. You'll learn a lot about the area you're visiting. Look out for special tourist passes or find out which attractions are free. In many cities, some museums are free to visit. Laughter and friendships, landscapes and brushes with interesting and varied cultures - these are what make travel enriching and worthwhile.

Lake Tahoe is the largest alpine lake in North America, in the Sierra Nevada range. The lake was formed about 2 million years ago and is a part of the Lake Tahoe Basin. The Lake Tahoe that we know of today was shaped during the ice ages. But that's not why you want to be here.

Lake Tahoe is a vacation you'll never forget; crystal blue waters, perfect sandy beaches surrounded by a spectacular mountain range and alpine forest. It's been the playground of millions, and counting you millions and ONE.

It's quite impossible to fill you in on all Tahoe has to offer, so here are some suggestions. But really they're just a drop in the lake.

Tahoe-Let Me Count The Ways

Even if you haven't been on a bike since your childhood, you can find a mountain bike ride that is right for you. Tahoe is so bike friendly that cyclists can practically go anywhere without using a drop of gas. There are paved trails from Stateline all the way to Camp Richardson and from Tahoma to Tahoe City. The opportunities exist to choose to go all out on balls-to-the-walls terrain or to just take a romantic, scenic lakeside cruise.

Tahoe

Waterworld And More...

But if swinging a club is your thing, golfing in Tahoe is an experience any player can enjoy. For golfers visiting from lower altitudes, playing in the Tahoe area means a noticeable increase in distance on their drives and long-wedge shots. A potential par saving 10 percent increase. Just remember the higher you hit it the farther the golf ball travels.

Luckily you don't have to travel far if you love the water. Every imaginable water sport is found right here. Spending a day on Lake Tahoe is a great way to have some water-based family fun. It is not, however, the only way. For those who are ready to move beyond the lake, river rafting is a great alternative for summer recreation. Experience a mellow, relaxed trip that is perfect for families without any previous experience. While adrenaline junkies can hit the more difficult class 3 rapids.

Away from the lake, you can discover swimming holes. Like Spooner Lake, which is just one of many. The lake is small and shallow, which makes for warm water early in the season.

Go camping! Yes, ditch your well-appointed hotel room, and comfortable bed, to live it out in lush meadows, under heavenly stars. It's hardly Man versus Wild, the popular TV series. In fact, with the help of a qualified guide you'll find yourself wondering if you shouldn't just spend your entire vacation this way.

If you happen to be at Tahoe during the month of May, you'll definitely want to experience the West Shore's Memorial Weekend, if not only for its Foothills Farmer's Market. From 8 a.m. – 1 p.m., the market features produce and food from regional farmers. Organic eggs are just one reason people stop by. Later in the summer it's watermelons, cherries and strawberries.

Do yourself a favor and discover Lake Tahoe for yourself. Because North America's largest Alpine lake is filled to the brim with ways to make your holiday memories last longer than the ice age.

Do's:

- Research Lake Tahoe to get the most out of your stay.
- Pack appropriate clothing.
- Insect repellent is a must in Summer.
- Take time to smell the alpine air.
- Talk to the locals to discover Tahoe gems.
- Let your hotel know where you're going and time of return.

Don'ts:

- Never do an activity beyond your ability.
- If hiking, never stray from the marked trails.
- Rush any activity.
- Eat any wild fruits unless advised by a guide.

HOW TO GET THERE

Most visitors fly into Reno/Tahoe International Airport, about an hour's drive to Tahoe on Interstate 80. Major airports are also located in the San Francisco Bay Area, about 4 hours away, and Sacramento, about 2 hours away.

Canmore is located on the eastern slopes of the Canadian Rockies, 1 hour west of Calgary (1.5 hours west of the Calgary airport). Banff National Park lies just to the west and north of Canmore, with the town of Banff only fifteen minutes away. There is no better place to base as you plan your exploration and discovery of the Canadian Rockies. Canmore is the base camp of choice for the discerning traveler who recognizes the value of an authentic mountain community oriented to sharing a passionate sense of place with its guests. Canmore and Kananaskis Country together create the perfect combination of a four season mountain village coupled with incredible wild land areas well suited for a variety of recreational pursuits.

Summer Loving

Canmore rewards visitors during the spring, summer and fall seasons with an incredible variety of walks, hikes and bike trails. There is a phenomenal variety of mountain bike trails to be enjoyed here. The Spray Lakes area offers quick access to alpine terrain with the average trip taking between two and three hours. A number of longer half and full day hikes are also available.

If you prefer to get your feet wet, you can enjoy placid river paddling on the waters of the Bow River. Guides will ensure you get the best out of your experience. A more interpretive experience can be had on the Bow River, which passes right through Canmore. Float trips take visitors on a calm voyage down the Bow. This trip is a great chance to enjoy incredible scenery and maybe sight some wildlife. Kids as young as age three can take part, which makes this trip ideal for the young family.

Want to capture some wildlife? You can. Canmore Kananaskis is trout country. The waters of the Upper Bow River are home to naturally reproducing wild brown trout, while the many lakes of the region offer opportunities to pursue rainbow, cutthroat, brook trout, lake trout and there are even golden trout in a few locations.

The very history of the Canadian Rockies has much to do with climbing, and the mountain culture thrives today more than ever in Canmore. In summer, at least eight crags await discovery within half an hour's drive. These offer a wide range of climbing options, from bouldering to day-long multi-pitch climbs. There is more than enough here to challenge any level of climber.

Closer to Earth

Canmore's dining scene includes well over 30 eating establishments from ethnic cuisine to local Alberta beef, fine dining, family restaurants and cozy cafes. Restaurant decks (patios) abound throughout Canmore and also at the Kananaskis Village. Once you have experienced dining on a deck on a warm day here, you'll definitely place it on your list of unforgettable Canmore Kananaskis experiences.

Strolling around Canmore in summer is a pretty relaxed affair. As you meander along the streets, you'll very quickly discover that the Canmore shopping orients to tasteful collectibles, a number of outstanding art galleries, an internationally acclaimed quilt store, a chocolatier, a gem factory and much more. The experience is distinctly casual, and perhaps a little addictive. Unlike most cities, you will not feel rushed or pushed.

And that in a nutshell is the essence on Canmore. Friendly, accommodating locals. A relaxed atmosphere. Unintimidating surrounds. Now isn't that what a holiday is suppose to be?

Do's:

- Make the Canmore Visitor Information Centre your first stop.
- Acquire the best information possible regarding the trail of your choice.
- Regardless of trip duration, carry an effective noise maker (air horn or other device), as well as bear spray.
- Advise someone of your selected destination and projected return time.
- Obey trail closures.

Don'ts:

- Never approach or feed the wildlife.
- Keep small children close while in densely forested areas.
- Avoid using forest, and wildland trails on a solo basis.
- Do not approach elk or their calves.
- Avoid any area where you find or smell a dead animal.

HOW TO GET THERE

The total driving distance from Vancouver to Canmore is 542 miles. You can also fly, take a bus or travel by rail. The closest International Airport is in Calgary. Banff does have an airstrip, but there is no commercial service. An expensive charter flight will be required to land right in the park. Vancouver International Airport is an approximate 12 hour drive to the west. Springbank Airport (west of Calgary, towards Banff) is nearly 80 km from Banff. It operates short charter flights.

2119 Banff Gate Mountain Resort

You can't discover New South Wales without first knowing Sydney. It's the most populous city and it's also the state capital of New South Wales. Sydney offers the perfect base to explore its award-winning vineyards.

New South Wales' wine region is centered in the Hunter Valley - stretching from Wollemi National Park in the South to Barrington Tops National Park up North.

Here, you're assured that your wine tasting adventure is paired perfectly with gourmet food. Award-winning, top-rated restaurants are liberally sprinkled across New South Wales. You can stock up on delicious gourmet goodies at the farm gate, artisan bakeries, family-owned wineries and the regular farmers' markets that are now a tourist feature of most major New South Wales towns. Impress your friends with rare vintage wines, organic hand-made cheeses and fresh seafood from some of the cleanest waters in the world or a box of succulent organic figs, juicy peaches or crisp apples.

Let The Tasting Begin

You can choose to do one day forays into New South Wales vineyards. However, you can opt to stay for a short break or long weekend to enjoy a regional cooking class or wine tasting course at vineyards that offer accommodations.

There are a variety of tours that you can opt for. There are the usual coach tours. And there are tours for more intimate groups. These are conducted in a luxury limousine and each tour is customized and private. You can allow them to hand pick the best Hunter Valley wineries, restaurants, cafes, and local producers, or you can suggest your own. For a truly unique way of viewing the wineries, you can also take to the air. Helicopter tours are available, and they offer you a view that's as inebriating as the wines. They even offer heli-lunch tours.

There's always the incredibly amazing option of living in wine country. Some are major resorts, others intimate guesthouses. Some are modern but built in Australian colonial style and many are converted from old mansions and cottages. Some are actually on the vineyards and some a short drive away. Either way, prepare yourself for a level of indulgence that's almost sinful. Many properties are rated four, four and a half and five-star.

If you've never been on a wine holiday before, New South Wales' vineyards are the perfect choice for your first taste. The scenery is as amazing as the wines, and food you'll encounter. The atmosphere is relaxed and there's none of that wine snobbery you'd expect.

Best of all, you can bottle all your great New South Wales memories, and savor them whenever you're in the mood.

Do's:

- Relax, you're in wine country.
- If you are intending to stay on a vineyard, book early.
- Experiment pairing wine and food.
- Bring back your favorite bottles.
- Look out for boutique wineries.

Don'ts:

- Be aware of your country's Custom's regulations regarding alcohol.
- If you drive, don't drink.
- Do not speed, not all roads are paved, or lit at night.
- Never litter.

HOW TO GET THERE

A self-drive holiday is definitely one of the best ways to explore Sydney and its surrounding regions. The beauty of it all is that the regions are all within a short drive from the city so you can enjoy the best of city and nature experiences. The scenic route will be Sydney to Blue Mountains and then Hunter Valley. Total travel time is approximately 6 hours.

Alicante

Celebrate Living

Alicante is located on Spain's eastern coast, about halfway down the Costa Blanca to the south of Valencia and Benidorm. Alicante is one of Spain's oldest cities, tracing its history back to the Romans more than 2,000 years ago. It's famous for its excellent weather. It offers countless sightseeing attractions—cathedrals and churches, stunning beaches, amazing Mediterranean weather, and a very vibrant nightlife – if you can handle the late hours.

In fact, just 45 minutes drive north of Alicante is another haven for night birds. Benidorm is very popular due to its many bars, restaurants and fun attractions for kids and adults, such as Terra Mitica, Terra Natura, Mundomar and Aqualandia.

The Spanish truly love to live. And this passion is the main ingredient found in their cuisines.

Savour Alicante

Alicante, like most of Spain, is famous for its cuisine. Almost every restaurant in Alicante offers some variation of paella, the country's most celebrated dish. The traditional one-pan recipe pairs short-grained rice with ingredients like rabbit, chicken, seafood and snails. The all-seafood version, often taken by outsiders to be the most authentic paella, is actually a later development.

Alicante cuisine, always brings two things to mind: freshness and quality. The local cuisine adds its own original flavour to its paella dishes by giving big importance to the rice and fish combination. A must-try is paella a la alicantina, a lovely combination of rice and chicken or pork, tender artichokes, and seasoned with a touch of red or green pepper and the arroz a banda (rice in fish broth).

One thing visit you should bear in mind is that late hours observed in Spanish kitchens are taken to an extreme here: Except at a few tourist establishments, it's bad form to turn up for lunch before 2 p.m., or for dinner before 9:30.

Here's a great way to bring home the special flavors of Alicante, make your own paella.

Do's:

- Tips are expected when visiting a bar or restaurant. Hotel porters, theatre ushers and taxi drivers should be given tips as well.
- Always carry small change because you will require it while using public bathrooms.
- Be prepared to have late lunches and dinners. It is advisable to take a nap ("siesta") to adjust oneself to the Spanish schedule.

Don'ts:

- Don't wear shorts when going to the church. It should only be worn on the beach or the resort.
- The Spaniards talk very rapidly. So don't be taken aback about the way they speak. They don't even pronounce the z's and the internal c's of any word.

HOW TO GET THERE

The distance between Barcelona and Alicante is about 650 km (approx. 400 miles). It is a 6 to 7 hour drive. You can take the Autopista motorway, where you need to pay a toll on some parts. It is less crowded, than the Carretera Nacional road which is free, but often very crowded. Plan on a few breaks and you will definitely enjoy the drive (especially around the Costa Blanca where the Autopista offers some wonderful views along the coast line. The train from Alicante to Barcelona takes about five hours and depart from Barcelona Sants station. Buses from Barcelona to Alicante take about 7 and a half hours. There are also scheduled flights to Alicante.

RECIPE

PAELLA ALICANTE

INGREDIENTS:

- 7 tbsp of good olive oil
- 3 medium green peppers, seeded and chopped
- 3 cloves garlic, peeled and minced
- 3 tomatoes, peeled and chopped
- 8 young and tender artichokes, chopped
- 1 lb short grain rice
- 1 qt water
- 1 lb pork, diced
- Saffron
- Sweet (Spanish) paprika
- Salt

DIRECTIONS:

1. Heat the oil in a large skillet and fry the peppers lightly and quickly to avoid burning them.
2. Set them aside. In the same oil, fry the garlic, tomatoes and artichokes over low heat.
3. Add the rice and stir, then add the saffron and paprika.
4. Add the water and salt to taste.
5. When it begins to boil, add the pork and let the mixture cook vigorously.
6. Puree the fried peppers with a little water and add to the rice.
7. Continue cooking, without stirring, until the rice is half done, then reduce the heat and cook slowly until finished.

The rice should be cooked, dry and have the grains separate (rather than stuck together).

POINT & SHOOT GREAT SHOTS

Any kind of camera, in the hands of someone who knows what they're doing, can take a great photograph. This applies to film SLRs, digital SLRs, and point-and-shoot cameras alike. So don't feel disadvantaged if you don't have the latest and greatest. Here are some tips on taking better point-and-shoot photographs.

Play with your camera.

Technology in today's Point & Shoot cameras have improved tremendously. Compact cameras today have nearly as much flexibility, and functionality as many Digital SLRs. Don't just stick with automated features, learn to manipulate the manual settings like ISO, shutter speed, and aperture. Read the manual, play, experiment, and practice. You'll get the most out of your camera.

Play with the flash.

Your Point & Shoot model has the ability to turn the flash on and off. Learn to use ambient light, and fill light to avoid that overexposed "snapshot" look. Using the flash in daylight/outdoor/brightly lit situations can help to balance the range of contrast in the image.

Framing the perfect shot.

Sometimes the image in the viewfinder may come out different in the actual photograph. Use the composition guides that are superimposed over the image on the viewfinder to align your photographs.

Play with perspective.

Today's Point & Shoot models are compact, and lightweight. This opens up a whole range of opportunity for uniquely angled shots. That you don't have to fuss with lens changes or lug a bunch of equipment around enables you to walk further, climb higher, and shoot faster.

Talk to your friends.

Ask your friends for opinions on their Point & Shoot cameras, or borrow their models to find the one that is right for you. Do your research and read the reviews to ensure the model you purchase is the right one for you.

How was your Holiday?

Our winner, Lalipat Pokprasert from Thailand shares with us their honeymoon story made extra special by RCI. She gets to win for herself a digicam to capture more moments with RCI.

It was the most memorable trip of our life. We were married on 17 April 2010 in Thailand. We've traveled to many places together- Hong Kong, China, Japan, New Zealand, but nothing compares to our Honeymoon! We called RCI, and they suggested us to stay at a ski resort called "Les Crete", which is more than 1000 feet high from land. It's quite isolated but absolutely ROMANTIC!!

We stayed at Les Crete from 1 May-8 May 2010. Staying there was the right decision. Although it's not ski season, it's still such a heavenly place. The weather was great; the atmosphere was wonderful and also, the people were very friendly. The good thing of long staying at one place is that we don't have to waste our time to keep on packing our stuff. And we felt right at home in the ski resort.

All the facilities in the resort were so perfect. They've got everything we need. The room was very big, clean and cozy, especially the kitchen; it's huge! Back in Thailand we hardly cook, but here, we were inspired to cook. We went to the supermarket at the bottom of the mountain, bought a lot of fresh food enough for a week and used the kitchen alright. We went out for sightseeing everyday. However, we came back specifically to cook dinner everyday. My lovely husband was a great cook, guide and navigator. I think this trip with RCI is really unforgettable and the most impressive trip ever. We love you, RCI.

Understanding the Enhancements to your Membership

The new enhancements will give you more control over your vacation planning experience. In addition to the opportunity to exchange your vacation time for another vacation week, you will also have the flexibility to:

- ➔ Know the Deposit Trading Power of your Week: RCI members often wonder how RCI determines what Exchange vacations their Deposit will be able to trade into. Now, you'll be able to see the trading power value of your deposited week. You'll see how your Deposit Trading Power changes based on when you deposit, and after depositing, you'll be able to see how your Deposit Trading Power compares to the trading power of all available exchange vacations.
- ➔ See ALL Available Inventory: When searching for an Exchange you will be able to choose to see only the inventory that is equal to or less than the trading power value of your deposited week, or of all available weeks in the system. By choosing to see all available inventory you'll even be able to see vacations that require more Exchange Trading Power than that of your available Deposits.

- ➔ Get More Vacation Options with Deposit Credits: Upon exchanging your vacation time, you'll receive a Deposit Credit for any remaining Deposit trading Power. That means if you trade down for an Exchange vacation with lower Exchange Trading Power than your Deposit has, you'll receive a Deposit Credit, for the difference between the Deposit Trading Power and Exchange Trading Power, posted to your account to use by the travel thru date of the original Deposit.

You can use this credit in two ways:

- 1. Exchange it for another vacation: You can use your Deposit Credit to book a second vacation or equal or lesser value than the other credit. So essentially, you can get two vacations using one week!
- 2. Combine it with another Deposit: You can combine your Deposit Credit with another week that you have deposited to increase the trading power of that Deposit. With higher Deposit Trading power, you can trade up into an Exchange vacation requiring more trading power than that of your original Deposit, giving you more Exchange options than you had before!

Is My Deposit Trading Power Changing?

The trading power of your deposit isn't changing! It has always been there and is used to determine the exchange options available to you, and it still will. The added flexibility is in that now you will SEE your Deposit Trading Power, as well as the Exchange Trading Power of available vacations.

FAQ's

➔ What happens if I choose to deposit or exchange now?

Not to worry, you won't miss out on anything if you deposit or exchange now. In fact, if you deposit early, 2 years to 9 months in advance of the start date of your week, you will be sure to get 100% of your available Deposit Trading Power to use when you Exchange, and if you're ready ready to book a vacation, you'll save more than $20 off the call center exchange fee when you book online. If you have a week in the system, after the enhancements are made available, you'll be able to see its Deposit Trading Power.

➔ What will this change do to the exchange vacations I'm able to see?

You will still have at least the same number of vacation options as you do today. IN fact, depending on how you choose to search and use your weeks you may have access to more options than ever before!

➔ Should I wait?

No. As always, our available Exchange vacations change rapidly! Many members are depositing early to guarantee they receive 100% of their available Deposit trading Power to use when they Exchange. By waiting to Exchange, you'll risk missing out on the Exchange that's perfect for you.

➔ Why change now?

For over 35 years, members like you have enjoyed exchange vacations all over the world, and for over 35 years we've worked to provide you with the value and flexibility you've asked for. We're constantly working to enhance your RCI membership providing new technology, new vacation options and added flexibility.

Access to RCI.com and all it has to offer is easy. If you're not already registered, simply log onto RCI.com and click the Register Now button. You'll then be prompted through the sign-up process.

How to Register

1. To register at RCI.com, log on, click Register Now and select Weeks Member.
2. Enter your Member ID number, Name and Contact Information including your Email Address and then submit.
3. You'll receive an email with your new PIN number and instructions on how to complete your registration.

*Find your RCI® Subscribing Membership ID number on an RCI Affiliated Resort Confirmation sheet or on your copy of Endless Vacation® magazine above your name on the address label.

Once you're on RCI.com

You'll discover exciting improvements, more information and enhanced content!

Resort listings feature more photographs, more detailed information about the resort and helpful local travel information, including Google Maps. You'll also find resort ratings by RCI members like yourself to help better plan your vacation. And you're invited to share your opinion about resorts you visit.

You can manage your account, search for your next great vacation, get travel resources, find the answers to frequently asked questions and review your Subscribing Member benefits.

And there's more! Your online experience will never be the same again. While browsing through rci.com, feel free to explore the latest social media efforts of RCI that will keep you glued to that screen, or phone, a little bit longer.

Some things are more fun and easily understood when seen as videos, especially if it showcases the many RCI-affiliated resorts. RCI has its own YouTube presence through the RCI_Timeshare Channel, where over 90 of these high-definition videos are uploaded. Sit back and enjoy watching the destination reviews while you dream of your next exotic getaway.

You're probably used to seeing the very corporate RCI site that features all that you need to know about the company and the resorts. This is the lighter, casual side of RCI. Updated twice a week, great vacation stories are shared by other fellow members in this online diary. You can read and participate by giving your comments and tips! blog.rci.com

Being part of our Facebook family entitles you can get the latest scoop about anything RCI. Join the conversation, exchange tips and discuss fun facts and trivias...basically, anything under the vacation/timeshare sun.

Be "tweeted" to juicy information about popular destinations --in 160 characters or less. Get instant updates and relevant travel news from reliable sources retweeted to help feed the voracious travel soul in you. Join today and follow @RCI_Timeshare.

iPhone App for RCI!

Download the free iPhone® application and you're all set to SNAP, SYNC and SHARE!

The RCI SnapBook allows you to take photos, videos, voice memos and texts on your iPhone® while you're on vacation. You can sync these contents to RCI Snapbook.com and keep it online. It can be published as a scrapbook, timeline or map display, all good to go for sharing with family and friends!
